SLAYER'S STORY DOUBTED

THREAT IS TOLD BY VICTIM'S WIDOW

Plummer Said He Would Kill Her if She Talked of the Murder, She Says

Fred A. Risteen was murdered in cold blood and thrown into Norwood's Pond because he objected to the lawless love of George W. Plummer, Jr., for his wife, the police are convinced today.

They do not accept the "confession" of Plummer that he killed Risteen, his former landlord and love rival, in a fair fight in the woods of North Beverly.

Neither do they believe that Mrs. Risteen, cause of the crime, is telling the whole truth.

Although she insists that her love for Plummer died when he told her that he had slain her husband, it is the police theory that she loved him after the crime and tried to shield him to the end.

STORY FRAMED, SAY POLICE.

Plummer's story and that of Mrs. Risteen are so alike that the authorities of Beverly are convinced they were rehearsed long before the two were arrested or the body of the victim found.

"I was drunk; he charged me with stealing his wife's love. We fought and I killed him."

So says Plummer, tall, gangling, powerful, a widower, and openly Risteen's rival for the affections of the latter's wife for many months.

"I knew nothing about it until George came in early the morning of September 21 and told me he had murdered Fred in the woods, while they were drunk."

Thus Mrs. Risteen, in her cell in the Beverly police station, as she alternately bewails her infatuation for her husband's slayer and weeps for her two children.

CHARGES DEATH THREAT.

The man and the woman, whose unhallowed love affair has landed both in jail, agree on all details but one.

Mrs. Risteen says she would have disclosed the facts concerning the killing of her husband, but that Plummer threatened her with death if she spoke. Plummer denied it.

"I want to see Plummer punished for this crime," Mrs. Risteen told Inspector William F. Murray of the State police and Chief of Police Davidson of Beverly, after describing the manner in which she says she was forced to accompany Plummer back to the woods and assist him in weighting and binding her husband's body and throwing it into Norwood's Pond.

"I never dreamed his love for me would lead to such an awful crime. I suffered untold agony in keeping our guilt secret. Now I am relieved."

Mrs. Risteen's children have not

LA FOLLETTE IS STRONGER ON 17TH DAY POLL

Shoes and cotton for La Follette!

So, in five words, can be told the significant fact about the voting in Massachusetts on the seventeenth day of the Boston American's Presidential Preference ballot.

The straw vote in the Bay State continues to indicate President Coolidge's triumph hereabouts by a comfortable margin, but it also says—when you get into the textile and shoe centres, at least—that Robert Marion La Follette is going like a house afire and conceivably may get be in a position to threaten.

A conviction among the rank and file of the Democrats that John W. Davis has no chance, and that the only way to drive the Republicans out of Washington is to unite on La Follette, would upset all the grahns of the political dopesters.

The seventeenth day of the ballot revealed the Democratic candidate

1,000 HOODED KLANSMEN MEET IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

West Rumney, N. H., Oct. 12.—More than 1,000 hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan, without any intrusion upon their meeting, convened in Coburn Field, off the Daniel Webster highway.

While a large cross flared from the highway, visible for miles around, the Rev. W. R. Pierce of the Methodist Church at Lakeport, delivered the address to members and eighteen initiates, declaring that the Klan typifies true Americanism. The gathering was comprised chiefly of women.

OF SINISTER IMPORT TO AMERICA

Leading editorial in Cyrus H. K. Curtis' New York Evening Post.

THE policy of coercion aimed at the United States by the League of Nations develops steadily. The Geneva arbitration protocol is aimed straight at America. This has received the approval of the League Disarmament Commission.

This report has a peculiar, even sinister, importance to the United States. It arrogates to the league certain of those superpowers that first aroused American distrust and fear of the league. Millions of Americans have believed these powers shadowy and vague. Sidestepped by the league and sharpened by this "protocol," they seem anything but vague, shadowy.

It holds hat non-member states, refusing to sign the protocols and rejecting the arbitral findings of the league, shall be forced to accept the league's decisions.

6 SHIPS, 34 MEN, CAPTURED AS RUM-RUNNERS

New Haven, Oct. 13.—Two tugs, three small schooners and one launch, whose aggregate crews total thirty-four men, were captured by the coast guard cutter Tampa and the coast guard destroyer Jouett.

One of the tugs was the ocean-going Underwriter, which was released a few weeks ago under bond after having been previously captured for rum running. She was taken by the Jouett and had 5,000 cases of liquor in her hold.

The other tug, which was without cargo, was outward bound when overhauled by the Tampa. Some of her men were at the time engaged in painting the name William Mahoney on her pilot house. Otherwise there was no clew to her identity. She carried no papers and her officers were minus licenses.

The three schooners, Amriold, Lone Star and Acquidnk of Newport, without liquor, were captured by the Tampa just as they were leaving the French steamer Anois, anchored in rum row.

The thirty-four men were held for a hearing.

5 MEN TAKEN IN RUM SEIZURE OFF GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, Oct. 13.—Five boats loaded with 3,000 gallons of alcohol and a quantity of case whiskey were seized and nine men were arrested by coast guards and customs officers who frustrated a big rum-running plot today.

The boats were captured heading in from Rum Row off Cape Ann, trying to enter several North Shore harbors simultaneously.

Boast That ZR-3 Is Carrying Wine Across Ocean

Berlin, Oct. 12 (I.N.S.).—All stories to the effect that the ZR-3 was "dry" on her trans-Atlantic voyage were disproved today by biz advertisements in the German newspapers today of champagne firms boasting that the dirigible carried cases of their brands of wine.

In this case, the "dry" can only mean dry champagne.

HUB LINER GOES ASHORE TRYING TO SAVE SHIP

Baltimore, Oct. 13.—(I.N.S.)—Racing to the rescue of a burning sailing vessel, the Merchants and Miners' freight steamer, Kershaw, ran aground today at Smith's Point just at the mouth of the Potomac River, where the captain and crew of 35 watched the "wind jammer" ship burn to the water's edge and then sink.

The Kershaw was on her way to Baltimore from Providence, when the blazing ship was sighted about 15 miles from land. Veering from her course, the Kershaw put on full steam and was within a mile of the doomed ship when she ran into the shoals. There was a desperate effort made to extricate the steamer, but this was not accomplished until after the sailing vessel had become a charred and smouldering mass of wreckage and had been swallowed by the sea.

According to radio dispatches, no ship was near enough to the vessel to be of assistance. The identity of the sailing ship or the number of her crew had not been learned late today.

After releasing herself from the shallows, the Kershaw resumed her course and was due in Baltimore at 8 o'clock tonight.

The Kershaw was to have begun its regular Winter schedule between Boston and Norfolk next week.

DIRIGIBLE REPORTS ALL WELL

Huge Air Cruiser Covers 1900 Miles of Voyage to U. S. and Passes Azores

Washington, Oct. 13 (I.N.S.)— A special weather report wirelessed to the ZR-3 by the Navy department today said that a storm south of Greenland was moving northeastward and that there was an area of low pressure southeastward to Bermuda. The ZR-3, having passed the Azores, has covered 1,900 of her 1,980 mile voyage in thirty-five hours or an average of 54 miles an hour.

Horta, Azore Islands, Oct. 13. (A.P.)—The giant dirigible ZR-3 passed Fayal at 2:35 this afternoon (local time) on her way to Lakehurst, N. J. She was flying in a Westerly direction, traveling at a good rate of speed.

Apparently all was well on board the airship, which was clearly outlined against the blue heavens, flecked here and there by clouds. The weather was fine, with a northwesterly breeze blowing.

Washington, Oct. 12—The Zeppelin ZR-3 was floating today over the broad expanses of the Atlantic Ocean and the navy, on the alert, was standing by to render any help that might be needed by the great airship in its epoch-making journey from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J.

A moderate disturbance in the mid-Atlantic was reported practically in the path of the ZR3 by the naval ships on observation duty in connection with the transocean flight.

On the basis of the forecasts officials here predicted the cruiser would be assisted rather than hindered by the disturbance. They pointed out that from the Azores the ZR-3 might expect to have favoring westward winds if conditions now prevailing continue and by maintaining her present indicated speed been to see her. She does not want to have them see her in a cell.

DECLARE STORY IS 'FRAMED'

HEARS SELF DENOUNCED.

Only two cells away, Plummer heard the woman who once welcomed his caresses denounce him and wish for his punishment. He cleared his throat noisily but did not speak.

Plummer's mother, although not admitting her son's guilt, is bitter against the woman who was the cause of all the trouble.

"She is a temptress and the cause of George's downfall," she declared. "Time and again I warned him against her. Always I have been expecting something horrible to happen. Heaven couldn't smile on such a love affair."

Plummer is not given to self expression. Inarticulate, slow of thought, speech and action, he has lapsed into sullen silence, but he is suffering.

ARRAIGNMENT TOMORROW.

The man and the woman will be arraigned tomorrow in Salem district court. There was a rumor today that the murder charge against Mrs. Risteen would be dismissed and one charging her with being an accessory after the fact substituted. Another report was that she would be held in heavy bail as a material witness and allowed to return to her children, under bonds.

Risteen was to have been reburied today. At the last moment W. H. McSweeney of Salem, his lawyer, intervened, and demanded that physicians retained by the defense be given a chance to examine the body.

The purpose of the attorney was to prove that Risteen was hit on the head by Plummer in their drunken fight, and died by drowning when the slayer became panic stricken, believing him dead, and cast him into Norwood's Pond.

Medical Examiner George H. Stickney insists that death was due to strangulation indicating premeditation and deliberation. The body will be reinterred after the examination which will be completed today.

The Beverly police, aided by State detectives are running down a dozen loose ends, which they believe will prove Plummer, Risteen and her self-confessed sweetheart had an equal share in the slaying of the husband and the disposition of the body.

FOUGHT IN WOODS.

So many of the statements made by the pair are contradicted by evidence the police have already verified that it is generally believed both man and woman will give entirely different versions of the crime when confronted with this evidence.

The police will endeavor to prove that the murder of the husband was premeditated—that the couple in cold blood, planned the slaying of the husband, that they might live together unmolested—possibly get married.

The confessions of the woman and Plummer fix the place of the actual murder in the woods off Essex street, near Norwood Pond, about three and a half miles from the Risteen home.

Plummer stated that he and Risteen, both drunk, sought admission to a gambling place on Rantoul street, Beverly, and upon being refused entrance to the place, went out Essex street in search of another gambling game Plummer said he knew of.

While in the lonely wooded section, Plummer, insisted, the husband accused him of intimacy with Mrs. Risteen and announced that he intended giving a licking to the despoiler of his home. Plummer's version is that both men fought in a drunken manner until both fell over and that Risteen never got up.

Plummer insists he then pulled the body into the brush, staggered to the Risteen home, three and a half miles away, and returned to the body with Mrs. Risteen in her automobile. His confession tells how he walked across two fields to the outbuilding of the Ames Lawrence estate, of which his father is caretaker, and there secured insulated wire, chains, rope and an automobile engine block—weighing about 70 pounds in all, and returned to the body with this load, making but one trip.

CONFESSIONS SIMILAR.

His confession recites that he then carried the body and the load of junk to a boat—a considerable distance away—loaded his victim and the weights into the boat and then, with Mrs. Risteen accompanying him, he rowed out on the pond a distance of 300 feet and there sunk the body with wire, attached the weights and dropped it overboard. Returning to the shore, the couple returned to the Risteen home in Mrs. Risteen's automobile.

Plummer's story of searching for a gambling game in the lonely farming section of North Beverly, at midnight, after being refused admission to a place on Rantoul street, Beverly, is also regarded with suspicion.

The police maintain that a man as intoxicated as Plummer insists he was at the time of the crime, could not carry seventy pounds of metal and rope over two rough fields, in a single trip. They declare he could not have carried the assortment of junk and the body itself, through the brush to the boat. In fact, there are a dozen points in the narrative which indicate the slaying and disposal of the body in the bottom of Norwood pond was not a crime that could be carried through by one person.

SAW BODY CARRIED.

The police have a witness who is positive he saw a man carry a heavy bundle, such as a body, from the Risteen apartment, early on the morning of September 21 and deposite the bundle in the back of an automobile. This witness declared that the man was joined, a short time later, by a woman who came from the Risteen apartment and the pair drove away.

The cold-blooded brutality of the crime is indicated by the fact that the report of the medical examiner shows that Risteen met his death from strangulation caused by a piece of wire twisted tightly about his throat. There was a wound over the side of the head.

Had not the woman broken down under the strain, following her collapse after viewing the body of her murdered husband, the police would still be at sea in the case, although from the first suspicion was attached to the couple.

PAGEANT ON COMMON IS COLUMBUS DAY FEATURE

The annual Pan-American meeting on the Common was the feature of the celebration of Columbus Day in Boston. Thousands thronged around the Parkman bandstand to hear the addresses and witness the usual Columbus pageant.

Lieutenant-Governor Felix A. Toupin of Rhode Island, candidate for governor in that State on the Democratic ticket, was the principal speaker. Major Curley, members of the city council, city officials and men and women prominent in public life attended the exercises.

The colorful feature of the exercises was the Pan-American pageant, in which groups representing many nationalities took part, each group dressed in the costumes of the lands represented.

A sunset parade and flag ceremony wound up the day. United States Infantry men with a band and a battery of the 101st Field Artillery, Massachusetts National Guard, participated.

The final event on the official city celebration of the holiday is a dinner at the Copley Plaza at 6:30. The city's program began in the forenoon with an athletic meet on the Common playground.

ZR-3 TO CROSS BERMUDA ON VOYAGE TO US

HERE'S THE ROUTE OF DIRIGIBLE FROM AZORES TO LAKEHURST HANGAR

CROSSES OCEAN TO WED AFTER WAR ROMANCE

Six years ago Charles Scott of Providence was a dashing young Yankee soldier, stationed at the Northwestern barracks, in England.

Between him and Miss Madge Ellis of Liverpool there developed a flirtation that for a time had all the marks of a real love affair.

Then he sailed away to Russia with his regiment, and he came back to America another way.

Since the war Scott has entered the drug business in Providence and has been married twice. His first wife he divorced. His second died about a year ago.

The other day Scott then thought of the demure little English girl of nineteen, whom he left on the docks at Liverpool when he sailed away to Russia.

Letters followed. At first Miss Ellis was cold to his suit, but matters were smoothed over and today Miss Ellis landed in Boston from the Cunard liner Scythia, on her way to Providence to become his bride.

She admitted to ship news reporters today she, too, has had an affair of the heart, but the English sweetheart died before the day set for their wedding. Scott and Miss Ellis will be married in Providence tomorrow night.

There were 948 passengers on the Scythia when she docked, among them Daniel J. Kane, the exalted ruler of Boston lodge of Elks. He has been touring Ireland, England and France. Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, Joseph Sullivan and George A. Stewart met him at the pier.

SAILOR WITH OTHER'S BEST GIRL CALLED BACK

The United States Navy has removed one alleged obstacle from the thorny pathway of love of Domingo De Jesus, whose bride-to-be, Miss Ernestine Von Kahle, of Roxbury Crossing, disappeared on the eve of her wedding.

Miss Ernestine Von Kahle

Domingo is a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Utah. He returned from a cruise and rushed to wed Ernestine. He found her gone. She was last seen, he declares, in company with another sailor, one E. Cresastemo. Cresastemo was on a five-day leave. He went from Fall River to have it extended two days, he was refused, so is back at the Navy Yard.

PLAN NAVY AIR BATTLE OVER CHESAPEAKE BAY

Washington, Oct. 13.—Air aerial naval "battle" will feature the pageant substituted by the Navy Department for the Schneider cup races over Chesapeake Bay, October 25, because of the failure of foreign entries to participate. Small craft will assume the role of battleships while scores of planes from the navy squadron and numerous civilian aircraft, perform the evolutions conceived to comprise an enemy bombing attack.

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 13. — It was revealed today that after the Shenandoah's radio apparatus was repaired she was in communication with Washington, D. C. and Hartford, Ct. ## NEW CHURCH IS DEDICATED AT CAMBRIDGE

Thousands Take Part in Ceremony Over Which Cardinal O'Connell Presides

Before a gathering of more than 3,000 persons Cardinal O'Connell today dedicated St. Paul's Catholic Church at Bow street, near Harvard square, Cambridge.

Although entrance to the new edifice could be granted only by tickets, hundreds of persons appeared in Bow street as Cardinal O'Connell stood in front of the entrance for a few minutes and blessed the structure.

The Cardinal paid tribute to Harvard University, which is only a few hundred feet away, but expressed regret that such a great institution did not carry out the fundamentals of Christianity.

He drew a striking parallel between present-day education and the [illegible] Paul to whose memory the new church was dedicated.

"St. Paul," the Cardinal said, "was a scholar. He started out to conquer the Christians. He became blinded, and through Christ his sight was restored. St. Paul became a [illegible] with all his dynamic spirit he started on a second time—this time in the interests of Christianity.

POWER OF LEARNING.

"Learning, combined with love for Christianity, proved indestructible."

The Cardinal drove down Bow street, which was lined by members of the Holy Name Society.

He was welcomed by Francis J. Good, chief marshal of the ceremonies, who was assisted by Timothy J. Sullivan, Edwin Powell, Lawrence E. Sullivan and William Faulkner, members of his staff.

Church dignitaries from all sections of Greater Boston were present.

FR. RYAN SAYS MASS.

Mass was celebrated in the upper church by Rev. John J. Ryan, permanent rector of St. Paul's. Fr. Ryan succeeds to under the late Rev. William Orr, one of the best known members of the diocese. On Fr. Orr's death Fr. Ryan was made pastor.

Following mass, Fr. Ryan told of the changes in his parish in the last twenty years. He explained that at one time the parish was one of the largest. Parishoners sold their property when the subway was erected and only a handful of the former congregation now remains. It was through the loyalty of this handful, Fr. Ryan said, that it was possible to erect the beautiful structure now formally dedicated as St. Paul's.

CARDINAL'S TRIBUTE.

The Cardinal paid tribute to the work of Fr. Ryan and his congregation and for a few minutes told of how the works of art that have been placed together into the beautiful structure were gathered from all parts of the world.

St. Paul's Church was started in 1915, but because of the war work was delayed and it has just reached completion.

Rev. Dennis J. Murphy, Rev Dennis O'Brien, Rev. William W. Gunn and Rev. Fr. Pilsbury, curates, assisted in the celebration of mass.

MAYOR QUINN PRESENT.

Mayor Edward Quinn and five former mayors of Cambridge attended the services. The order of former mayors were: Walter C. Wardwell, John H. McNamee, A. J. Dalley, William J. Brooks and T. W. Good.

The following prizes also at within the altar rail:

Mgr. J. F. McClinchey, diocesan director, Propagation of the Faith; Mgr. Ambrose Roche, St. Patrick's Church, Watertown; Mgr. Edward J. Moriarty, St. Thomas' Church, Jamaica; Very Rev. Fr. Rabel, Provincial of the Marist Order; Rev. Daniel Reardon, Marblehead; Rev. J. J. McGann, St. Luke's, Westboro; Rev. Richard H. Sylaine, Sacred Heart, Mt. Auburn; Rev. Edmund Shanahan, Sacred Heart, Mount Auburn; Rev. Thomas McCormick, St. Frances De Salles, Charlestown; Rev. Jones I. Corrigan, S. J., professor of philosophy, Boston College, and Rev. Charles A. Finn of St. John's Seminary, Brighton.

St. Paul's according to several of the priests who attended the dedication services, is one of the most beautiful edifices in New England.

'OF SINISTER IMPORT TO AMERICA'

how to a league now dominated by Anglo-French politicians, the league is obliged to apply "sanctions." This is a safer word than "blockade." It is more unctuous than "fleet concentration" or "troop mobilization." It is, as a word, far softer than "war," but it might mean just that.

These powers were kept in the background while America was being urged to enter the league, but are dragged forth now in the policy of coercion. Under them Geneva is not to be a world clearing house of arbitration and justice. They make of the league a world policeman swinging the club European politics and old world intrigue order swung.

In sum, if the United States refuses to join a League now saturated with and ruled by European self-interest, it may be outlawed if it attempts to protect its own interests and attend to its own business.

Meanwhile Great Britain's party, for all Ramsay MacDonald's disclaimers, has been offered to do the League's sea-policing. Japan is hopefully maneuvering to bring before the League such domestic questions as immigration. The European debtors of America are drawing together ready to act as a unit in pressing their claims for debt cancellation to America. The new alignment of the old World against the new is thus emphasized.

This is another of the several maneuvers intended to force America into the League. The naked threat in the report cannot be hidden. It is aimed at a great power that, following instinct rather than reason, stayed away from Geneva.

That League is no longer the body of idealism urged upon America. Its spirit has changed, in every day of its fifth assembly it has shown itself the creature of the politician. Such idealism as it has left is used to cloak designs that trace through the Quai D'Orsay and Downing Street back to the "Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

Gentlemen at Geneva today are less concerned about disarmament and justice than about forcing America into the league. They are less concerned about that than about debt cancellation. Coercion to bring America to Geneva is the road Europe has chosen to cancellation.

The league is to be used as a bankruptcy court if we will cross the Atlantic. This is not the manner of league that America wants, regardless of what impressions Europe may have gained last Summer.

It is curious thing to see the change of Europe's attitude since the visits of some of our Cabinet members in Paris and London. While "unofficial" they have had strange sounds.

Perhaps it would be just as well, for both Europe and ourselves, for us to placed American executives to remain on this side of the Atlantic for a while. Misleading, even though "unofficial," representations may encourage unwise and even dangerous coercion.

ZR-3 ENTERING STORM AREA OVER SEA

about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The latest forecast relayed by the cruiser Milwaukee and giving the compiled prediction from all sources for the noon period today, was as follows:

"Disturbance south of Greenland moving northeastward with trough of low pressure southwest to Bermuda. The lowest (barometer) 29.42. Pressure still high, Quebec south to Florida. Highest 30.34 at Montreal.

"Strong shifting winds above latitude 45, but diminishing elsewhere. Moderate to fresh northerly winds west of longitude 60 and probably moderate southwest winds between latitude 35 and 45, from longitude 60 eastward."

Captain George W. Steele, American naval officer aboard the ship, who will take command of her upon her arrival at Lakehurst, told the Navy Department in a belated radiogram of her departure from Germany, where she was built for the Germans, in agreement in conformity with the terms of the armistice, adding that she sailed smoothly from the start and passed over the Bay of Biscay without incident.

The southern steamship route is being followed, by the way of the Azores to Bermuda.

Weather conditions when the Zeppelin reaches Bermuda doubtless will influence the German officers in continuing on to Lakehurst by that route or changing the route they will take northward.

If the ship is headed on the regular steamship course she would reach the Atlantic coast of the United States either at Charleston, S. C., or at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay.

TO SAVE FUEL.

As the Southern route is the long way round from Germany, however, it was assumed at the Navy Department that the Zeppelin commander would follow the shortest course he could in order to conserve the fuel supply.

Besides Captain Steele, two other American Navy officers and Major Kennedy of the Army Air Service are aboard.

The first stage of the journey was across France and Captain Steele reported an average speed of more than 60m. per hour with all engines running. Only four engines were in operation when the ship pushed off for the Azores, however, as it was desired to conserve the fuel supply.

The ZR-3 was built for the United States at the Zeppelin plant under agreement which makes her available for military purposes. She is equipped for commercial use and will be employed on pioneer work for commercial air routes being handled by Army and Navy air personnel in order to train men of the two services in handling airships of this type.

WARSHIPS ON PATROL.

In preparation for the flight the navy stationed ships along the great circle (northern) route which it was expected would be followed as the shortest line to Lakehurst.

Selection of the southern route made necessary a change in the position of the cruiser Milwaukee, one of the three naval ships posted in the North Atlantic for meteorological service. She was ordered to shift position 450 miles southward for better radio communication.

The Patoka, at latitude 55, longitude 45 (about 800 miles south of Cape Farewell), has been designated as the "station ship."

The Detroit, at latitude 45, longitude 45, about 900 miles south of Cape Farewell and 300 miles southeast of Cape Race, is the "observation ship."

The Milwaukee, originally at latitude 44, longitude 57, nearly 250 miles east of Halifax, is the "radio relay."

MESSAGES RELAYED.

The most northerly ship of the three is making hourly observations of weather conditions and in addition is taking air soundings of the upper stratas by means of pilot balloons every six hours.

Four times each day this information will be transmitted to the second ship in the train, which will combine it with observations taken by her own officers.

The data also will be checked against information forwarded from the Weather Bureau at Washington and any submitted by ships at sea, and the combined information will be then relayed to coastal stations for transmittal to the Navy Department, which in turn will send it to the ZR-3 through Annapolis.

ALL READY TO LAND ZR-3 AT HUB AIRPORT

At the East Boston airport, preparations for handling the ZR-3, in case she should have to make an emergency landing, have been made as thoroughly as if the giant airship were definitely scheduled to land here.

Army officers are awaiting the radio flash which, if it does come, will warn them the airship is coming here. The airport is constantly in touch with the ZR-3 by radio, via the cruisers stationed at intervals along the trans-Atlantic course.

Final orders were wirelessed to the Boston airport today from the Navy Department, directing officers and men to "stand by." Similar orders went out to Paris Island, S. C., Langley Field, Va., and Mitchel Field, Long Island, N. Y.

SCORES OF MEN ON HAND.

A land crew of 125 sailors from the Navy Yard and a detail from the infantry troops stationed at Fort Banks constitute the emergency forces at the airport. The "gobs" are there to handle ropes, and the infantrymen to keep off the crowds if the ZR-3 should come.

Boston also will enjoy a wonderful sight if the ZR-3 is forced here by storm or other emergency. If the gale continues she will not be able to make a landing and will have to stay in the air and ride out the wind. There is a possibility of the airship having to stop for fuel, especially if the elements retard her progress. The East Boston port is ready with tons of gasoline.

SIGNALS ON LAND.

A gigantic cloth arrow, fifty feet long, spread out on the ground will tell the pilot of the airship the direction of the wind [illegible] ing here. Great white figures on the ground will tell him the temperature and other signs will tell him the velocity of the wind and the air pressure.

In case of a landing at night, these signs will be outlined with electric lights. In any event they will be visible 1,000 feet in the air.

French Demand Scrapping of Huge Zeppelin Plant

Paris, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Now that the ZR-3 has really left for America, French officials are interested in the fate of the great Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen which in conformity with the treaty of Versailles must be demolished, according to the Amabassadors' Council's note of April, 1922, Germany is only entitled to build dirigibles under 50,000 cubic metres capacity.

The French press is urging the government to keep strict watch to see that this provision is complied with, now that the departure of the ZR-3 no longer gives an excuse for maintaining the Zeppelin Works.

"BEST DRESSED" GIRL'S ATTIC HOME IS FULL OF LUXURY

ALL COMFORTS OF LIFE UP ON THIRD FLOOR FLAT

If there are any friends of pretty Letitia Marvin, winner of the title, "Best Dressed Girl in America," who are sympathizing with her because she is living in "a three-room attic tenement" they may transfer their sympathies.

Pretty Letitia says so, and the American reporter who journeyed out to her "attic" at No. 188 Savin Hill avenue, Dorchester, agrees with her.

Several days ago Letitia's divorced husband fought in court to take their ten-year-old son away from her. He set up in his petition that one of the reasons was because of her three-room attic tenement home. Also that she was working and did not have the time to care for the boy.

Well, Letitia is living on the top floor of the three family house, but as for an attic! She has beautiful, thick, soft rugs, mahogony furniture, draperies that are exquisite, creamy white woodwork, in short she has everything that goes to make up a beautiful home.

"And I want the world to know it, too," said Letitia. "This bunk about my living in an attic makes me sick. See the attic for yourself and then decide. This is the top floor of a three-family house. My mother owns the house, too, so I guess no one need worry about me or the way my boy will be cared for.

"Most of my friends know how I live. The others needn't sympathize with me, for I do not need it. Right here I want to say that I never lived in so nice a place while living with my husband. I am not a model, either. I sell ties—men's neckties. So that is that. And I am making a comfortable living. Now take a look around at the "attic."

Just then her son, Vale Goldthwaite Marvin, Jr., came in. He and his mother went to the piano and the youngster sang a couple of songs while his mother accompanied him on the piano. "Do we look atticy?" asked Mrs. Marvin.

HERE'S LETITIA MARVIN'S BOY
His father won't get him if his mother has her way, and she intends to see that she is victorious in the coming contest in court.

2 KILLED AS N. Y. EXPRESS SMASHES FREIGHT ENGINE

New Milford, Pa., Oct. 13—The engineer and fireman of a pusher engine at the rear of a freight train were killed and three other trainmen injured today when a Buffalo-New York passenger train on the Lackawanna railroad in a heavy fog crashed into the slowly moving freight one mile west of here. No passengers were injured, it was said. Failure of the engineer of the passenger train to see the signal protecting the freight, due to the fog, is believed by railroad officials to have caused the accident. Michael Kelly, 40, of Halstead, Pa., engineer of the pusher, was killed when his engine overturned as the passenger engine ploughed into it. Ray Osterhout, 33, also of Halstead, the fireman, was caught between the tender and pusher and crushed to death.

STATE FUNERAL ONLY FOR ANATOLE FRANCE

Paris, Oct. 13 (A.P.)—The desire of the French government to give Anatole France a national funeral cannot be realized as Parliament is not in session, making it impossible to pass the special act which would be necessary to accord national honors to the celebrated author who died yesterday at Tours. The state will, therefore, assume the costs of the funeral as it did in the case of Leon Gambetta, who died when Parliament was not sitting.

BATTLING HUSBAND FOR BOY

"AMERICA'S BEST-DRESSED GIRL"
Mrs. Letitia Marvin whose husband wants to take her son away from her. He set up in his petition that one of the reasons is because of her three-room attic tenement home. Also that she was working and did not have the time to care for the boy. The "attic" is really a palace.

It's as Dangerous to Lead Singers as to Play Football

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 13.—An awful casualty of Saturday's Princeton Lehigh football game was revealed today.

William M. Millard of New London, Ct., threw his right arm out of joint in directing the singing of Princeton rooters.

BLUE MONDAY AT WELLESLEY, NOT HOLIDAY

Today was a holiday for thousands of persons, but to the majority of students at Wellesley College it was Blue Monday.

For today the girls started training for the various sports they aim to pursue, and you may take it from them that the early Christian martyrs suffered no greater refinements of torture.

The trainers are stern, overbearing persons who take a jaundiced view of life and have a Puritanical horror of frivolity.

ALL TOO TERRIBLE.

The harshness of their edicts is calculated to bring tears to the eyes of a stone bust, as for instance:

"No eating between meals."

Can you IMAGINE it?

But worse is yet to come.

No tea or coffee—and, it's too horrible—NO CANDY!

Add to these outrages the necessity of arising at 6:45 a. m. and you have an idea of the sacrifices being made in the interest of college sports.

RUN ALL THE TIME.

But wait. We nearly overlooked the meanest blow of all.

A new hockey coach, an English girl, has ordered all candidates for hockey teams to run 600 yards a day.

As a result girls going out for hockey are taking everything "on the lam," in the vulgar parlance of the day. They run to classes, they run to chapel, and they run, oh, so eagerly, to meals. Sometimes they forget, and then they have to run up and down the corridors at night.

MAID'S CHARGE BLACKMAIL, STAR SAYS

Berlin, Oct. 13 (Universal)—"Blackmail" is the counter-charge which Charlotte, noted European prima donna, hurls at her accusers who charge her with flogging and mistreating pretty girls she engaged as maids—charges which are the sensation of Budapest, Vienna and Berlin, and which the Budapest police are investigating.

DENIES CHARGE.

The opera star, a widely-known figure in the most aristocratic society of Budapest, first raised the charge at a cross-examination in which she was subjected for several hours by the Budapest chief of police. She again emphatically denied all accusations and charged Mathilde Messler, the young and pretty dressmaker, who says the singer often beat her in the presence of guests, with telling friends that she knew how to get a dowry and money to get married; she would support the prima donna to the police and get thirty million crowns for it.

Meanwhile the police have ascertained that the star is a younger sister of the Countess Tarnowska, who years ago played the principal role in a sensational murder trial in Venice.

The countess shot her husband and fled with her friend. They caught the countess and sentenced her to a long term in prison, but she was later pardoned by the King of Italy.

PRINCE'S FAVORITE.

Charlotte was first heard of as a singer back in 1907 at Braunschweig, Germany, where she attracted the attention of the reigning prince. The friendship between the two developed, and made Charlotte an interesting personality, but it also gained for her the enmity of all other members of the Court Theatre and the shocked, virtuous ladies of the capital of the little principality.

The ladies decided on a regular crusade against her. When Charlotte sang the chief part, the ladies of the audiences suddenly began a violent demonstration with whistles, toy trumpets, rattlers and other noisemaking instruments until the curtain was rung down and Charlotte fled from town.

She was next heard of in Vienna, where the alleged strange passion for inflicting pain was first brought to the notice of the authorities.

POLICE SAY WEST END WIFE SLEW HUSBAND

West End police say they believe they have cleared up the fatal stabbing of John Hempevick, 49, of 95 Lowell street, Saturday night, and will formally charge his widow, Mrs. Victoria Hempevick with slaying him with a knife.

Police understand that the slaying occurred during a drunken brawl. Benjamin Simmon, who lives nearby, and was in the house at about the time of the tragedy, police say, was probably innocent and will be released.

PRINCE MOUNTS HORSE, VIEWS STOCK YARDS

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.)—The Prince of Wales viewed the world's greatest stock yards from the back of a sorrel colt today.

Accompanied by two expert cattlemen as aides, the Prince mounted the sorrel and began riding through miles of alleyways in the yards.

The Prince came in his capacity on Edward Davis Windsor, private citizen. His motor car available was decorated with American and British flags.

Besides Louis F. Swift, his daughter, Mrs. James Minotto, and other members of the family, greeted the Prince at Lake Forrest. Major Oscar S. Solbert, former military attache at the American embassy in London and a friend of the Prince, and Oliver Sawyer, from the State Department at Washington, also greeted the visitor.

Jewel Display to Mark Prince's North Shore Visit

A heavy guard, especially increased for the occasion, will protect the millions of dollars worth of jewels which Boston society women will wear next week in North Shore mansions for the Prince of Wales.

Arrangements have been made for multiplying the watchmen on duty at various estates in Wenham, Hamilton, Ipswich and other communities. Private detectives have been hired to keep a lookout in several residences, both during entertainments and through the night.

Jewels that have lain untouched for months are being dusted off and carried to the North Shore for the Prince's visit.

Wealthy folk have already been startled into increasing the lookout for sneak thieves by an epidemic of jewel robberies which swept society's playground in New England late this Summer.

One insurance agency has written a theft policy for $50,000 on a necklace of perfectly matched pearls during the past week. This will be worn by a society favorite, who discovered that the policy protecting her against loss of this string had expired.

COOKING CLASSES FOR MEN STARTED

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 13.—And now the gas companies are to have cooking classes for men!

This was the announcement made here today by the domestic science experts of gas companies who are attending the convention of the American Gas Association.

The first evening class for men has been established already by the Laclede Gas Light Company, of St. Louis, with Miss Helen Wetherell in charge. Brooklyn, Chicago, New Haven and Denver are expected to organize classes for men before Christmas.

CHAPMAN SLIPS PAST CORDON IN 3 STATES

Accomplice of New Britain Slayer Is Son of Springfield Hotel Magnate

New York, Oct. 13—Gerald Chapman, mail robber and escaped convict, who is now being sought for the murder early yesterday of a policeman in a robbery in New Britain, Ct., so far has eluded the police in one of the most intensive man hunts that has recently been undertaken in the eastern United States and Canada.

Despite the precautions of police of New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts to guard every possible point of escape, Chapman has eluded them with the same skill which he showed in escaping three times from the authorities after his capture in 1921, following the million dollar mail robbery in Leonard street, of this city.

Chapman's confederate in the robbery which yesterday led to the killing of the New Britain policeman was Walter E. Shean, son of a well known family of Springfield, Mass. He was captured as he was entering the automobile waiting near the store which the pair undertook to rob. In the automobile the police said they found burglary tools, a revolver and $200 in currency.

Only after long questioning would Shean reveal that the escaped robber was Gerald Chapman.

He said he first met Chapman last July upon the mail robber went to Springfield after escaping from Atlanta prison, but would not reveal anything of Chapman's activities during the several months he remained as having spent in Springfield.

Shean is the son of Charles T. Shean, president of the Kimball Hotel Company of Springwield and owner of the Cooley Hotel of that city.

Lady Maria Decies, in Poverty, Seeks Employment

London, Oct. 13.—Lady Maria Gertrude Decies, widow of the fourth Baron Decies and sister-in-law of the present baron, who married Helen Vivian Gould, is said by the Daily Mirror to be living in poverty, making an insufficient livelihood by keeping a small village store near East Grinstead.

Her ladyship is quoted as saying that she has not a penny except what she makes in her shop and that she is sometimes hungry, owing to the smallness of her income. She declares she lost all her money in helping another and that she would be grateful to anyone providing her with remunerative employment.

LIGHTS BLIND AUTOIST; ONE MAN KILLED

Machine Swerves From Marlboro Road and Crashes Into Tree

Marlboro, Oct. 13.—Blinded by the headlights of an automobile on Main street in Hudson, John J. Downey of Marlboro lost control of his own machine today and it crashed into a stone wall.

Charles H. Taylor, twenty years old, of Framingham road, Marlboro, who was riding with Downey, was killed.

Downey, who is twenty-six and lives at No. 185 Church street, was cut about the head and body.

Frank Allard of Devon street, Marlboro, third man in the machine, suffered abrasions and shock.

Downey and his friends were driving back to Lake Boon after buying groceries at Marlboro for their camp.

Philippa Wendell Becomes Earl of Galloway's Bride in London Tomorrow

By BETTY ALDEN.

MRS. BARRETT WENDELL of Marlboro street, sailed for the other side in good time to be present at the ceremonial which will transform her niece, handsome Philippa Wendell, into the bride of the Earl of Galloway.

The all-important event takes place in London tomorrow, being of considerable interest both here and abroad.

Miss Wendell is the daughter of Mrs. Wendell and the late Jacob Wendell, better known as "Jack" Wendell to his Harvard '91 classmates. These same classmates "registered" considerable interest when Mr. Wendell, brother of Barrett Wendell, adopted the stage as a profession in his later life.

Fifteen years ago Mr. Wendell died, whereupon Mrs. Wendell took her four children to live in England.

Two years ago the older daughter, Miss Catherine Wendell, became the bride of the present Earl of Carnavon, who at that time was Lord Porchester.

A year ago the elder of two sons, Jacob Wendell, 3d, was married to Miss Eileen Victoria Carr, the wedding likewise a London event. The younger son of the family is Reginald L. Wendell.

Tomorrow's bridegroom, Sir Randolph Algernon Ronald Stewart, Earl of Galloway, is twenty-one years of age, and succeeded to his title on the death of his father in 1920. He served in the World War, and was captured by the Germans in the first Ypres fighting.

His estate consists of nearly 70,000 acres, very nearly large enough for two young persons.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell, I hear, is to return to these shores sometime next month.

THE very intrepid young lady whom you see in the accompanying photograph is Miss Mary Louise Butterfield, of Chestnut Hill.

Lest there be any mistake about it, Miss Butterfield is holding a lobster in her hands.

Not a mere lobster, but a live one—with great, large, wiggly claws meant for business!

Nor did Miss Butterfield have to be coaxed to death to pick up this anything-but-chummy-looking denizen of the sea, though I'll warrant she can think of many more pleasant things to do.

With her sou'wester, "yeller" slicker, and squirmy-legged lobster, this attractive bud of the past Winter was the cynosure of many at Uncle Sam's Market Place. She was "on duty" at the Cape Cod counter, where every variety of the species inhabiting the waters of the Cape were brought up fresh each morning from the section famous for its cod.

CONFESSES TO HOOTCH PARTY SLAYING

Police Declare Roxbury Man Said the Quarrel Arose Over Buying Drinks

Donato Vellico, forty-seven years old and married, of No. 6 Sherwood street, Roxbury, today confessed, according to the police, to the murder of twenty-one-year-old Alfred Battaglia, of No. 142 Cedar street.

Battaglia was stabbed to death during a quarrel in a "hootch parlor" on George street, Roxbury, Edward T. Connolly, twenty-four years old, of No. 11½ Clarence street, Roxbury, was taken to the City Hospital, suffering wounds in the abdomen.

Police who were attracted to a house on George street by a disturbance found Vellico, Joseph Sweeney and Raphael Ponico standing over the motionless body of Battaglia. They were placed under arrest and the victim was taken to the hospital, together with Sweeney, who appeared after the police arrived.

Vellico was taken to police headquarters today, where he is said to have admitted he wielded the knife that caused Battaglia's death. According to the police, he said an argument arose over the payment for drinks.

Battaglia, formerly a sailor in the United States Navy, lived with his mother, Mrs. Mary Battaglia.

SHORT SKIRTS ARE VOGUE IN PARIS

By C. F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of Boston American

(Special Cable Dispatch)

Paris, Oct. 13.—Rouged shoulders and peacock feathers entered the fashion lists today.

Regine Flory, whose sensational attempt at suicide this Summer apparently has not spoiled her beauty or her daring, introduced the first innovation, while Mrs. Walter Passah of New York wore the feathers as a quaint trimming to a white clinging gown of watered silk.

Another noticeable fact today was the increasing tendency of skirts to mount toward the knees. At least five inches have been cut off last year's popular length.

Sleeves are returning to favor for the first time since the war.

A daring attempt by two dressmakers to reintroduce the shirtwaist failed dismally.

The ascendancy of the American woman in matters of dress is finally proved by the early departure for America of Jean Patou, who declares:

"Hitherto Americans came to Paris to get their dress ideas, but now we creators are forced to seek our inspiration in America."

Patou intends to spend four months of intensive study of the American woman. Incidentally, he also intends to present the Metropolitan Museum with a collection of letters from General Lafayette.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McCormick returned last night from Carlsbad and have announced their intention of making their permanent home in Paris in the house in Rue Lubeck which was built for Hanna Walska by her former husband, Alexander Smith Cochran.

One of the most brilliant crowds of the season attended the opening of Oscar's Embassy Club, the hosts including Ambassador Moore, who entertained Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and the latter's sister, Mrs. James Y. Converse.

12 HELD FOR ATTACK ON U. S. MISSIONARIES

Washington, Oct. 13 (I.N.S.)—Twelve men, suspected of being members of the mob of Buddhists that attacked Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Gleason, Baptist missionaries at Rangoon, have been arrested, according to dispatches received by the State Department today from American Consul Charles J. Pinar.

The district is quiet and several Americans living in the suburbs have been granted special police protection. Mr. and Mrs. Gleason will recover.

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural duties, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

WIFE ON TRIAL IN HUSBAND'S SLAYING

Her Children in Court as She Pleads Not Guilty to Plotting Murder

Middleburg, Pa., Oct. 13 (I.N.S.).—In a low voice and with eyes downcast, Mrs. Annie Willow, charged with first degree murder in connection with the slaying of her husband, Harvey Willow, pleaded not guilty before Judge Miles I. Potter today. Selection of a jury was immediately begun.

As the woman made her plea, her seven-year-old daughter Ida sat in the courtroom, her big blue eyes filled with tears. The defendant wept when her son Glenn, eleven, entered.

Mrs. Willow is alleged to have instigated Ralph Shadel, her eighteen-year-old sweetheart, to shoot her husband while they were hunting.

POTHIER TO RETURN TO CENTRAL FALLS

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 13.—Former Sergeant-Bugler Roland Pothier, acquitted Saturday by a Federal jury on the charge of killing Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, spent his first day of freedom in more than six months in renewing acquaintances with those he had met in Tacoma while he was stationed at Camp Lewis during war time.

Pothier said he intended to go to his wife and child in Central Falls, R. I., just as soon as he could, but that he was without funds and did not know when he would be able to apply for his old job as brakeman on an Eastern railroad, one on which he was employed when arrested.

SHIP DRIFTS AS RUM-SOAKED CREW FIGHTS

U. S. S. Seneca Seizes Norwegian Vessel With 43,000 Cases of Liquor

New York, Oct. 13.—Rolling lazily on a gentle swell in the lee of Sandy Hook, with her crew of thirty-two in irons and her cargo of 43,000 cases of liquor under Government seal, the seized Norwegian steamship Sealand this morning awaited disposition at the hands of the Federal Government.

NO ONE ON DECK.

There was nothing to suggest the tumultuous scenes that had been enacted on her decks before the coast guard cutter Seneca sighted her floating aimlessly about forty miles out from New York, without a helmsman.

When the Seneca came upon the Sagatind, Captain R. L. Blake, of the Seneca, ordered his men to board her.

The customs men saw no one on deck but a search disclosed two sailors asleep in the wheel house. Below decks they found the rest of the crew.

ARSENAL IN CABIN.

Some were asleep, some were in their bunks nursing broken bones and some were staggering about in a stupor. Nearly all were nursing black eyes.

The captain was found locked in his cabin, with twelve rifles and six revolvers beside his bunk. He explained that his ship is a 964-ton, oil burning vessel of Norwegian registry, had left Antwerp for St. Pierre with a derelict crew and 700,000 cases of assorted liquor. Only 43,000 cases remained. In the ship's safe customs men found $26,000 in American money.

The crew had made free with the liquor, he said, and before they were one day out, the fighting began. Brawls continued all the way over, reaching a climax after the vessel anchored in Rum Row, when the crew indulged in a drinking orgy, three men received broken jaws, one had his leg broken, two received broken arms and a score had their eyes blackened, he told the customs men.

SPORT CRITICS TO DEMAND SHOWDOWN ON BALL SCANDAL

EVIDENCE IS KEPT SECRET

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

New York, Oct. 13.—By tacit rather than spoken agreement, Eastern sport critics decided during the World's Series to force a showdown from organized baseball on the evidence they felt has been withheld from them on the O'Connell-Dolan scandal. They began the campaign today by reiterating their demands that the case be reopened or that O'Connell's testimony be made public, a request steadfastly denied them to date. The scandal, they intimate, will not be allowed to grow cold.

Some of the foremost critics in the world of sport are lined up behind this idea. Lest this attitude be misunderstood, the statement is made that the integrity of the men at the head of baseball is not questioned. Baseball at its foundation is honest, but baseball has been known to guess wrong before.

One of the two guilty players, O'Connell, not only involved Dolan in his statement, but the entire Giant team, particularly Frisch, Young and Kelly.

Baseball has given no adequate reason for accepting O'Connell's statement in regard to Dolan and declining it in regard to the others. It simply pointed out that Dolan had "acted" in a guilty manner when questioned and the others had not.

O'Connell has disappeared from his hotel leaving no forwarding address. It is presumed that he has departed for his home in California, taking his side of the scandal with him. Dolan is still about his Broadway haunts, but apparently has nothing further to say.

Only Judge Landis remains on the ground to reopen the issue.

BANKERS TO SEE ARMY BATTLE NOTRE DAME

New York, Oct. 13.—The Bankers' Club of New York, whose members as a unit see the football game every year, has taken a block of 250 seats for the intersectional battle between Notre Dame and West Point at the Polo Grounds on Oct. 18.

The Notre Dame Club of this city has taken 5,000 tickets to distribute among its members in order to correct the situation that occurred last year when many club members failed to secure tickets to see their college team oppose the cadets at Ebbets Field.

Work has started to turn over the infield at the Polo Grounds and extra seats will be installed, which will increase the capacity to 63,000 for the intersectional game this week.

PACIFIC COAST HOCKEY LEAGUE IS BROKEN UP

Seattle, Oct. 13.—After many years of successful operation the Pacific Coast Hockey League passed into history by the applications of Frank Patrick, on behalf of the Vancouver Club, and Lester Patrick, on behalf of the Victoria Club, for franchises in the Western Canada Hockey League. The Seattle team has broken up.

The Western Canada League will be composed of six teams, Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria, and will have for its leader E. L. Richardson, of Calgary, who was unanimously elected president for the 1924-25 season.

Decatur Sells Pitcher

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 13.—President L. J. Wheat of the Decatur Piano Association announces the sale of Pitcher Jim Sullivan to the Kansas City club of the American Association.

Brings Huge Doll on ZR-3 as Gift to Daughter

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Thirty-year-old Betty Lou Kennedy of Aurora, Ill., en-route to Lakehurst, N. J., with her mother, will have the surprise of her young life when her father, Major F. M. Kennedy, steps on land from the ZR-3 and presents her with a doll nearly as large as Betty Lou herself.

The doll has yellow curls and rosy cheeks matching those of Betty Lou; says "Mamma" as plain as anybody and, not only that, but it walks. The doll isn't a stowaway and is booked upon by the American officers aboard the dirigible as their mascot.

NORMAN ROSS COACH AT DETROIT A. C.

Detroit, Oct. 13.—Norman Ross, former world's swimming champion, has taken up his new duties as swimming coach at the Detroit Athletic Club where he succeeds Matt Mann, who resigned.

Ross is a pupil of Bill Bachrach, swimming coach at the Illinois Athletic Club. Percy McGillivray, another former world's record holder who was brought to the front by Bachrach, has just been appointed swimming coach at the University of Chicago.

BUSY DAYS FOR B. C. COACHES AND MEN

WORK OR FIGHT EDICT TO RING SLACKERS

By JACK CONWAY.

WORK or fight!

That's the substance of an order issued by the New York Boxing Commission.

Five thousand licensed ring slackers in the Empire State got cold shivers when they read this edict. They don't like to fight, but they hate work even more.

Chairman Brower of the New York Commission, a practical man in the affairs of the ring, says he is disgusted with watching pink tea parties at clubs. He is tired of seeing champions and near champions in action against fourth and fifth raters.

So Chairman Brower has issued his work or fight order. That's not just the language he used, but it will be the result of his action.

MANAGERS of fighters (or we should say actors?) in New York have been asked to submit to the commission a list of boxers that are willing to have their names of support meet weight, which will increase the capacity to 63,000 for the intersectional game this week.

Of course it is a very cruel edict from the standpoint of a flock of sure-thing boxers and penny wise managers. But it is a good thing for the boxing game and for the dear old public which pays the freight.

It will compel ring stars to meet opponents who have a chance to defeat them. This will mean better bouts and in the end larger attendances at the various clubs. The goose that is laying golden eggs for an army of boxers, managers and hangers on will continue to live. More important, the fans will see boxing matches instead of love sets.

Perhaps the Massachusetts Boxing Commission will adopt a similar plan to eliminate flatic slackers and give the ring game some of the old thrill it had in the days of John L. Sullivan, Peter Jackson and Jake Kilrain, poor business men but very good fighting men.

Eagles in friendly little practice session before the Fordham game. Below, the big three, Captain Joe Kozlowsky, Couch Cavanaugh and Hiker Joy.

Amateur Ring Stars in Tourney at Dilboy Post

Followers of the amateur mitt-wielders have a treat in store for them on Thursday evening, when Dilboy Post, V. F. W., stages its next amateur boxing tournament, in K. of C. Hall, Highland Ave., Somerville. There will be competition in each of the following classes, viz: 118, 126, 135, 147 pounds and heavyweight. This latter class has always proved an attraction for the fans as they are anxious to see the heavier boys perform.

Fred Russo and his active committee are working hard to put this show on an equal with the others staged by this active club and if the calibre of the entries being received are indicative of anything, the fans are in for an evening of torrid entertainment.

JIM MALONEY TO GET SEVERE RING TEST

Heavyweights will be aces once more this week with four ten-round bouts between big fellows billed for the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building on tomorrow night.

Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, will get the well known acid test when he clashes with Joe McCann of Newark, N. J., in the final ten-round event.

Maloney recently walloped Joe Stoessel of New York and then knocked out Tom Gardner, Pacific Coast heavyweight champion. He is deserving of considerable credit for agreeing to mingle with McCann. The latter, like Maloney, is still in his early twenties, but has been battling with the headliners for a longer period. He has fought Luis Firpo, flooring the South American on two occasions. He easily won over Jack Townsend, while he gave Battling McCreary a furious battle.

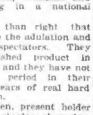
Tom Kirby of Roxbury and Jack McLellan of Somerville are also ready for their ten-round mill. When these men recently met over the eight-round distance, Kirby won a questionable decision.

They'll also be two more tens. Henry Van Putten, former traffic cop, will oppose Arthur Del Monte of Italy, a protege of Renato Gardini's, while Jack Hankinson of Singland will tow wallops at Jack Murphy of Roxbury.

United States Well Fortified With Young Tennis Talent

By VINCENT RICHARDS.

In lawn tennis, as in nearly every thing else, it is the occupants of the seats of the mighty upon whom attention is centered. Young Jones and Bill Smith battle for the championship of their club and a few personal friends gather around the court to Vin Richards watch the local stars in action. But thousands journey to Forest Hills, Wimbledon and the other tennis centers to thrill over the spectacle of seeing such international player as Tilden Johnston, Williams and Patterson playing in a national tournament.



It is no more than right that these stars receive the adulation and attention of the spectators. They represent the finished product in their chosen sport and they have not arrived at that period in their careers without years of real hard work behind them.

William T. Tilden, present holder of the national singles championship played for fifteen years in small tournaments before he had even enough courage to enter one of the big championships.

Now the famous Quaker sits on the mighty throne enjoying the rewards that come after years of real effort.

But what of those who are knocking at the door of fame. Just as these wizards of the racquet were five and ten years back? Will they shortly scale the championship heights and unseat the present holders of the various titles? Personally I believe that there are several young players in the game at present who have unusual promise for the future. In fact, there is not a section in any part of the country that has not its budding champion who may some day step into the shoes of the present title-holders.

Perhaps the most promising of the younger stars is George Lott, Jr., of Chicago. This eighteen-year-old marvel of the courts made a wonderful record for himself during the season just closed.

Starting early in June with a straight set victory over Gerald L. Patterson, leading Australian net star, he went through a remarkable tournament campaign that ended with his victory over R. N. Williams in the first round of the national singles championship at Forest Hills.

Five years should see Lott an important figure in Davis Cup tennis. Besides him there are three or four other youngsters in different parts of this great country capable of defending our tennis laurels. Young Bailey, Farrell, Sellers, McCauliff and Hennessey all show unusual promise that is bound to be taken into consideration in the next five years.

It is ridiculous for the United States to worry about losing the Davis Cup so long as we have such marvelous young talent to call upon in an emergency.

There is not another country in the world that has such unlimited young talent to call upon as the United States.

The Roxbury A. A. will be represented on the gridiron this Fall by one of the best teams in its history. Games desired with Tremont A. A. of Lawrence, Haverhill, Peabody, St. Alphonsus and Whitman American Legion. James F. Walsh, No. 970 Parker street, Roxbury, or call Jamaica 1895-M, after 5 p. m.

WILLIE HOPPE AND DE ORO SIGN UP

New York, Oct. 13.—Willie Hoppe and Alfred De Oro met for a final conference with Charles S. Kline, the promoter, and each posted side bets of $500 for the 600-point three-cushion match which will start at the Strand Billiard Academy this afternoon. One change in the original plan was made and that was that the first 300 points will be played at the Strand and the last 300 points at the Hoppe Academy. The first six blocks will end at the Strand on Wednesday night and the seventh block will start at the Hoppe Academy on Thursday afternoon.

George Moore, the former world's three-cushion champion, who will referee, also was present and went over the rules governing the match with the players. Promoter Kline also posted a purse of $1,000 and the match will be worth $2,000 to the winner. In addition it was agreed to allow the players to share in the gate receipts.

The match is attracting much attention among billiard followers. A number of billiard stars from out of the city have wired in for reservations. One of the headliners expected to witness the opening block on Monday afternoon is Robert L. Cannefax, the present holder of the world's championship. Cannefax yesterday sent a telegram from Sioux City, Iowa, informing Kline that he would be here either tomorrow or Sunday. He is making the trip for the purpose of signing a contract with Kline to represent New York in the National Championship Three-Cushion League, and also to get his first view of Hoppe in an important three-cushion match.

Otto Reiseli of Philadelphia, one of the players who finished among the first four in the league last year, also has announced that he will see a couple of the blocks. The excellent work of Hoppe in his previous three-cushion matches has stirred the present three-cushion leaders and his playing will be watched closely in the future.

Final Outdoor Card On this Afternoon At Fort Banks

The final bouts of the outdoor season will be held at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Mass., this afternoon. An excellent all around show has been arranged, consisting of four bouts of eight rounds each.

In the last of these Al Sears of East Boston, will battle Happy Gears of Charlestown.

In the semi-final, Joe Goes will face the hard hitting ex-sailor, Joe Monroe, of East Boston.

Jimmy Kenny of Wakefield will be matched against Mike Sack Mee, of East Boston. Bert Jones, well-known Revere boy, will face Frankie O'Leary, the clever East Boston boxer.

In the opener George Flanagan of Revere, will meet Kid Malone, of the Navy Yard in a four-round bout.

Never Too Old to Lose Pep

John Kling, Famous Catcher, Coming Back as Cue Star

FROM the baseball diamond to the rail of a billiard table as a star is a far cry and quite a leap. Johnny Kling is making it. This once famous catcher of a famous old Cub machine, perhaps greatest of any time as a backstop, will be a candidate for the three-cushion billiard title now held by Bob Cannefax of Detroit.

John, now in his forty-ninth year, never was a rough worker, on or off the field. Cleanliness and decency were personified in him. He knew his chief asset in baseball was a sharp eye. He knew, too, that could be retained only through bodily care and a cool brain. His was a fine example of athletic thrift.

It is telling now in his later years. His billiards in this difficult cue game that requires everything a man has of nerve and skill will reflect early training and care. He figures to be a dangerous factor in the big national cue race. If he can win, it will be a huge achievement.

John's peppery ambition is wonderful; his example truly commendable.

POSSESSION of guilty knowledge must place a man—usually—in a most uncomfortable position and an uneasy frame of mind. If a man believes it is for the best interests of all to lock his secret up in his heart and try to forget about it, all well and good. It should then become a dead issue and forever remain as such.

Charles Dooin, once one of baseball's greatest catchers, now comes out and announces he was offered a bribe of $40,000 back in 1908 to "not play his best" for the Phillies against the Giants.

The time for Dooin to speak was in the year 1908. Had he done so a world of bitter trouble might have been saved and baseball's atmosphere thoroughly purged. Dooin held his peace during the stench of 1919. He concerned himself not at all then about a scandal that shook the country.

Now, in 1924, sixteen years after he was approached, he sees fit to make a foul mess all the fouler. Dooin is hardly fair.

Autumn Racing Meet Opens at Empire City This Week

The final meeting of the metropolitan racing season opens at the popular course of the Empire City Racing Association at Yonkers, N. Y., on Thursday Thirteen days of continuous racing will bring the season for the bangtails to a close.

Zev

The program for the Autumn meet has been in the hands of the horsemen for several days and has earned their approval. The stakes, eight in number, include races for all ages, two-year-olds, three-year-olds and three-year-olds and upwards.

The Scarsdale Handicap, $4,000 added, at a mile, is designed to bring together the pick of the two and three-year-olds and the best of the handicap division. It was designed primarily to furnish a line on the juveniles of the season.

A two-year-old capable of defeating the older horses would be in the public eye through the Winter and his career as a three-year-old would be followed with unusual interest.

The presence of Master Charlie, winner of the Hopeful Stakes, and regarded by many good judges as the best juvenile of the season, guarantees the success of the Scarsdale, as he is considered a certain starter.

The older horses include Ladkin, Wise Counsellor, Sarazen, Zev, My Play, Laurano, Little Chief, Priscilla Ruby, Rialto, Transmute and other performers that have been making turf history this season.

Next Saturday the pick of the three-year-olds should be found at the post for the New Rochelle Handicap, which is a dash of a mile and a sixteenth and has $4,000 added.

Sarazen, Wise Councillor, Mad Play, Priscilla Ruby, Donaghee, Aga Khan, Sting, Bracadale, Transmute and Klondyke are some of the eligibles.

War Cloud won the premier in 1918 for A. K. Macomber, carrying 130 pounds.

One of the best races of the entire meeting, and an event that has given owners of backward two-year-olds a chance to do some good is the Autumn Days Stakes with $2,500 added.

This fixture is down for decision October 20. It is for two-year-olds, maidens at the time of closing.

The race has eighty-two nominations and is certain to have a big field.

FAIR ATHLETES TO VIE ON THE COMMON TODAY

Women's track events under the auspices of the city of Boston, will be held on Boston Common today, starting at 10 a. m. Among the fifty-seven entries received are New England's foremost track stars. The events will be 50 yards, 100 yards, and high jump.

A special feature will be Esther Sparga, winner of the National A. A. U. javelin championship at Pittsburg, last month, and member of the Boston Swimming Club, who will give an exhibition of javelin throwing.

Alta Cheney of Posse Gymnasium, winner of the State Legion dash; Katherine Menries and Rena McDonald, Boston Swimming Club, holder of New England records, made at the Park Department, city of Boston track meet, last Winter, in the dash and high jump events, are among those who will participate.

WALKER AND MALONE CLASH ON OCTOBER 29

Champion Mickey Walker and Jock Malone, St. Paul veteran, are signed to box on October 29 in the One Hundred and Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Newark under the auspices of the National Sportsmen's Club. The contest is scheduled for twelve rounds at the welterweight class weight limit of 147 pounds.

Under the New Jersey boxing law no decision is permitted in ring bouts held there, but Walker's title will be involved because the champion can lose his honors through being knocked out, losing on a foul or through being incapacitated severely enough to complete the full twelve rounds.

BALL GAME STAGED AT CHARLESTOWN PRISON

All work at Charlestown State prison was suspended today and the 658 inmates, largest number of men confined there since before the World War, enjoyed the holiday with yard liberty and a baseball game, between the Red Sox and Braves, the star baseball nines of the prison league. The Sox won 8 to 1. A holiday dinner of soup, roast pork, sweet potatoes, squash, bread, butter, coffee and a whole apple pie was served to each man at noon. The prisoners were allowed also other delicacies not on the regular prison fare.

TODAY'S GAME TO DECIDE ST. PAUL-ORIOLE SERIES

St. Paul, Oct. 13.—Excellent pitching by Fittery and Markle, combined with opportune hitting by their team-mates, gave St. Paul its second straight victory over Baltimore, squaring the game count in the junior World Series, at four all. Today's game will decide the minor league championship.

BROOKS, OLD YALE STAR, COACHES MINNESOTA

Minneapolis, Oct. 13.—Springer Brooks, end on the Yale teams of 1909 and 1910, now in the banking business in St. Paul, volunteered his services as a coach to assist Coach Bill Spaulding in rounding into shape the University of Minnesota football eleven.

BASEBALL IN FOR STORMY AND STARTLING WINTER SESSION

LANDIS TO GET AFTER JOHNSON

By GEORGE BARRY

Washington, Oct. 13.—Baseball is in for a stormy Winter session—perhaps the most turbulent of its turbulent history. And some epochal changes may take place in the ownership and personnel of the game before the teams start South in the Spring again.

One of these changes may be the retirement of either Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball's overlord, or Byron Bancroft Johnson, head of the American League, from the business. The warfare between the two men has reached such a stage it became known today, where Judge Landis is beginning to consider whether baseball is big enough to contain both himself and Johnson.

It was bitter enough before this conflict between the present Czar of the game and the deposed Czar of the American league. It has been intensified a thousand fold by the events leading up to the world series. Johnson refused to attend, because he said the Giants were a tainted "team" by the Dolan-O'Connell scandal and he publicly accused Judge Landis of being "unable or unwilling" to use the knife in a major operation on the game. Landis is going to have a showdown.

SERIES BEST ANSWER.

The series itself which set a new high record for enthusiasm, popularity and keen close competition, constitutes the best answer to the American league head. Judge Landis said just before leaving New York.

"He tried his best to make this series look dirty," exclaimed the Judge. "He wouldn't attend—yet the President of the United States attended every game played in Washington save the Sunday game. And while he snipped at the series from afar, here is what the President of the United States said about it.

"The contests which I witnessed maintained throughout a high degree of skill and every evidence of a high class sportsmanship tha, will bring to every observer an increased respect for an confidence in our national game. It would be difficult to conceive a finer example of true sport."

"That is what the President of the United States said about it. Answer Johnson? I don't have to—it has been done by the President of the United States."

WILL STILL INVESTIGATE.

There were these, Johnson among them, who would have me call off this series. What have they to say now? What has Johnson to say—his league won the greatest series in history in a contest which the President says "will bring to every observer an increased respect for and confidence in our national game."

Judge Landis does not intend to drop his investigation into the Dolan-O'Connell matter. That, he said, will be pursued to the limit.

"So far as I am concerned I will never close so long as there remains one lead to pursue, one scent to follow. I exonerated Frisch, Kelly and Young, because I believe they are honest, but I want a trial, with their work in this series justified that belief.

"But if there are others guilty of any scandal in baseball they will be caught and punished. Baseball must and will be kept clean."

BOSTON HOCKEY CLUB ADMITTED TO N. H. A.

Montreal, Oct. 13.—The Boston Hockey Club and a second Montreal club were admitted to the National Hockey League at a meeting of the league directors here, bringing the number of teams to six. The new Montreal club paid $15,000 for its franchise, and the Boston club a like amount for the American franchise, which was taken out by T. J. Duggan two years ago, it was announced.

The other four clubs in the circuit are Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and Canadians of Montreal. It was stated that New York would be a certain entry next season, and another United States city might also be represented.

SANFORD'S SON PLAYS ON PENN CLUB ELEVEN

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—The Pennsylvania freshman football team has as a member Foster Sanford, Jr., son of Foster Sanford, famed football star of Yale back in the 90's. The elder Sanford, who coached Rutgers College for many years, has sent his son to the Red and Blue, instead of to old Eli.

Young Sanford is now a member of Dr. Jack Kehoe's freshman football squad, which opens its season today. Sanford, Jr., who equals his famous father in build, prepped at the Kent School of New England, where he made a name for himself on the gridiron.

Tab another winner for old boy Moe. He jammed a grand note on Superlette's nose on Saturday and brushed in fourteen hundred smackers, bringing the total up to $30,585.21. He is starting off the week with a baby that was mailed to him by Rod the Razzer, the original first info boy.

ALL-STAR CARD OF MAT BOUTS AT GRAND

Big league wrestling will be resumed with a vengeance at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, when Matchmaker Paul Bowes stages three all-star bouts in his second show of the season.

Angelo Taramascli, Italian champion, will make his first appearance of the season in a finish bout with George Krieger, a husky German grappler. Angelo was at first billed to meet Ole Jacobson, the Norwegian, in a finish bout, but Jacobson asked that the match be postponed a few weeks until he gets in better shape. In meeting Krieger, Angelo will have a real contest on his hands. He intends to force Stanley Stasiak, the Polish lion, into a finish match with him, as he firmly believes ever since their two-hour draw at Revere Beach last Summer that he can defeat the big Pole.

On the same card will also appear Stasiak in a finish bout with Frank Brunn, the Canadian champion. He is almost the same size as Stasiak and being a young fellow has improved so much that he has an excellent chance to being returned the victor.

Another bout will be a finish contest between the Boston favorite Jack Albright, known as the man with the Thousand Holds and Harry Hadramanis, the Italian light heavyweight.

GIANTS AND SOX GET GOING ON TOUR

New York, Oct. 13.—The fact that the world's series went the full seven games slightly upset the original plans for the European tour of the Giants and the Athletics, but according to the new arrangement, the Giants left here for Montreal where the first game of the tour was scheduled to be played. Had the world's series ended on Thursday, the opening game of the tour would have been played in Ottawa on Saturday.

While the Giants were battling the Senators in Washington there was much activity around the Giants' offices There Hans Lobert, one time third baseman for the Phillies and later baseball coach at West Point, was in charge and co-operating with an official from the United States Custom House who was getting passports ready for the party that will make the trip.

Lobert said that he expected at least eighty persons would make the trip. The list included fourteen players on each team, the wives of most of the players, together with officials of both clubs, their friends and a few newspapermen.

The tentative list of players for both teams already has been announced. The White Sox will be headed by Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago American League club. According to a dispatch from Chicago twenty-eight will be in the party.

The present lineup for the White Sox follows: Ruel, Washington, and Picinich, Boston, catchers; Clancy, Chicago, first base; Morehart, Chicago, shortstop; Willie Kamm, Chicago, third base; Rice, Washington, Falk and Mostil, Chicago, outfielders, and Faber, Robertson, Lyons and Foreman, Chicago, pitchers. A second baseman has not yet been named.

The make-up of the Giants' team follows: Hank Gowdy, New York, and Butch Henline, Philadelphia, catchers; Stuffy McInnis, Boston, first base; Frankie Frisch, New York, second base; Travis Jackson, New York, shortstop; Heinie Groh, New York, third base; Emil Meusel and Ross Young, New York, and Casey Stengel, Boston, outfielders; Art Nehf, Claude Jonnard and Jack Bentley, New York, pitchers.

Johnny Evers, manager of the White Sox, will be in charge of the playing end of the Chicago team. Hughey Jennings and McGraw will direct the Giants. Ed Walsh, former White Sox pitcher, and at present serving in the capacity of a coach for the Chicago team, will make the trip and act as one of the umpires for the American League. The National League umpire has not been chosen.

FAST SOCCER MATCH THIS AFTERNOON

The Junior League game, North Shore vs. South Shore, at the Cooper street grounds in the afternoon, will also attract the fans.

WALTER JOHNSON HURLS WELL AGAINST BUSHERS

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 12.—Several thousand fans accorded a noisy reception to Walter Johnson, pitcher star, and his team-mates, George Mogridge, Joe Judge, Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, of the world's champion Washington baseball team, when they appeared in Duquore Park against a local nine which included several major league stars.

Johnson twirled three innings and fanned six batsmen. Joe Bush, Lou Gehrig, Steve O'Neill, Howard Ehmke, Jamieson and Malone played with the Johnson All-Stars.

Scranton with Mike McNally, Mike Gazella, Joe Shantz and other stars in the line-up, won the game 10 to 5.

SOCCER TEAM SHAPES UP WELL AT HAVERFORD

Haverford, Oct. 12.—Haverford College junior varsity soccer squad is shaping into a well-balanced team. M. Haines, a veteran from last year, is filling one of the full back positions. His running mate is Logan, a freshman, who starred at Germantown High. R. Haines, Pitter and Shank are playing the halfback positions, with Silver as a capable sub. Maguire is again guarding the net.

The schedule: October 7, West Philadelphia High at Haverford; October 16, Frankford High at Haverford; October 25, Lehigh at Bethlehem; November 1, Girard College at Haverford; November 8, Lafayette at Haverford; November 12, Swarthmore at Haverford; November 26, Penn J. V. at Philadelphia.

Harvard Crews Shows Great Power in Preliminary Work

Harvard will be represented by a much more powerful, much better trained, and a much more experienced crew than the relatively untried eight which went down before the crack Yale shell on the Thames last year.

With the coxswain, and five members of last year's varsity shell reporting daily for practice, Coach Stevens waxes enthusiastic about the immediate future of Harvard rowing.

"Nothing like it," he fairly shouted. "No comparison between this Fall's crew and last year's eight."

Practice on the Charles got away to an early start this year. It is Coach Stevens' intention to further drill and brush up the men in the new principles of rowing which supplanted the old Harvard system last year, that the men might reach the peak of form by early Spring.

"This year's crew is literally miles ahead of the crew which was defeated so decisively by Yale last year," declared the Harvard coach. "In form, style and technique it is beyond comparison with its predecessor.

"Last year the bulk of coaching attention was given to tearing down the principles of the old rowing system which had been taught the men. Now, with five veterans of last year's shell back on the seats, we can begin right where we left off last Spring. We will have a great shell on the water by next May."

45,000 TO SEE HARVARD AND H. C. BATTLE

There will be a crowd of at least 45,000 persons on hand to watch Harvard and Holy Cross clash at the Stadium in their annual encounter on Saturday.

Last year's record attendance of 47,000 will be approximated, if not passed, is certain, provided weather is good. The sale of tickets at the gate for the wooden stands is sure to attract a couple of thousand odd fans at present unaccounted for in Harvard statistics.

That the Holy Cross game has assumed a genuine "objective game" flavor in the minds of Harvard students is reflected in the serious attitude taken by them towards the game. There will be before-the-game dances and on the day of the game, the Harvard freshman class will march en masse from the Freshman Quadrangle to the Stadium.

The advance sale of tickets for the Dartmouth game which follows on the heels of the Purple encounter bids fair to equal last year's record of 37,000. Although applications have already closed, the request for tickets by Harvard men continues, and it is likely that the Harvard list will be exhausted before the middle of the week.

From the demand, it looks as if the H. A. A. coffers would be filled to overflowing. The growing importance of the Holy Cross and the Dartmouth games have brought them into the limelight, secondary only to the Big Three encounters, and the time is near when it will be as difficult to get tickets for these games as for the Princeton and Yale games.

HORSE SHOW OPENS IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 13.—More than 1,000 horses from the stables of the most prominent breeders and owners of this country and Canada were entered in the National Horse Show which opened here today under the auspices of the National Horse Show Association, to continue until Saturday night.

Exhibitions of rough riding by the New York State police will be a new feature. The mounted traffic squad of the New York City police department also will exhibit their horsemanship.

The first contest will be that of jumpers to be ridden by boys under 14 years of age. The judges for today are Alfred B. Maclay, president of the National Horse Show Association, and William Du Pont in the forenoon; David I. Matlack and Charles D. Lanier in the afternoon and Edward H. Carle and Major N. H. Egleston, U. S. A., in the evening.

THOUSANDS FILE PAST BIER OF JAKE DAUBERT

Schuylkill, Haven, Pa., Oct. 13—Thousands of persons, among them many of his boyhood friends and associates, viewed the body of Jake Daubert, first baseman of the Cincinnati Nationals, in the front room of his late home here today.

The pallbearers at the funeral today included Rixey, Roush, Duncan, Bressler and Donahue, of the Cincinnati Reds, and Lou McCarthy of Baltimore, formerly of the New York Giants.

PENN CREW TO RACE PRINCETON ON NOV. 14

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—Announcement was made that Penn and Princeton crews would meet in a championship match race on Lake Carnegie at Princeton on November 14. Princeton invited the Red and Blue to come to Princeton, Coaches Joe Wright and Jim Rice readily accepted. Four Penn crews have been rowing on the Schuylkill for the last few weeks. A race will be held between these crews, and the best one will be sent to Princeton.

OPERA STAR TO BROADCAST ORIGINAL COMPOSITIONS

Tonight the voice of Josephine Lucchese, prima donna of the San Carlo Opera Company, will radiate from the antenna of Station WIP, in Philadelphia.

Josephine Lucchese's rise to fame reads like a fairy tale.

Born the daughter of a boot-maker in San Antonio, Texas, it was while she was at school in an old convent that the real charm of her voice was discovered by Miss Virginia Colombati D'Acugno, a woman who had helped to train many opera stars.

One night, at the Manhattan Opera House in New York City, the star who was to sing the role of "Gilda" in "Rigoletto" was taken ill. In desperation, Gallo called upon Josephine Lucchese to sing the role.

The strains of aria rose as the great conductor lifted his baton. And Josephine Lucchese started her song.

When she had finished, there was a deep silence, and suddenly, as water rushes over a dam, a great roar arose.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for coughs, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant—children like it.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TONG FEUD SPREADING OVER U.S.

Situation So Serious That the Chinese Embassy in Washington Is Investigating

New York, Oct. 13 (I.N.S.)—Feudists of the On Leong and Hip Sing Tongs in the larger cities kept their eyes on New York's Chinatown and their hands on their pistols today, waiting for another conference that might result in the opening of a peace treaty.

With the collapse here of the first conference, arranged by Deputy Police Commissioner, Carleton Simon, the feud continued unabated. Thus far it has resulted in murders and shootings in New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago and the New York suburbs in New Jersey.

Business was at a standstill today in the Chines quarter here around Chatham square.

Another murder, this one across the Hudson in New Jersey, served to remind Chinatown that the Hip Sing and On Leong pistolmen had not yet vented all their fury on each other.

Following the assassination of a Chinese thought to have been C. Sam, whose body with bullet wounds in the chest and strands of rope knotted about his throat was found in a road near New Arlington, N. J., Newark police under the leadership of Commissioner Simon, descended in Newark's Chinatown and raided every house in two blocks.

Five caught in that round-up were held on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

Newark's Chinese district was thrown into panic when a touring car filled with Chinese whirled into the neighborhood. Instantly police were flooded with telephone calls from residents fearing the men were New York gunmen. When police arrived there, the car had vanished.

PERFECT LOVER IS SET FREE

Cincinnati, Oct. 13.—Frederick W. Hart, wealthy Chicagoan, is now free to wed Mrs. Alfred Lawrence Hall-Quest, ex-wife of the dean of the University of Pittsburgh, who announced to the world a week ago that she had found him the perfect lover.

Mrs. Hart secured her divorce today in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Alimony was agreed on out of court. Hart will pay his former wife $5,000 and give her one-third of his income as long as she lives.

Mrs. Hart had little trouble getting her decree. Her husband's infatuation for the scholar's former wife was too well advertised. Being the wife of a man whom another woman discovers to be the perfect lover is a fate no court would condemn a petitioner to.

Dr. Hall-Quest, having voluntarily relinquished his pretty wife to Hart, a former major in the British army, is back conducting classes at the University of Pittsburgh.

CONFESSES TO HUSBAND.

He surrendered her only when he became convinced that winking at her affair with the well-to-do Chicagoan would lead to a scandal worse than divorce.

At her repeated solicitation, and after she had openly confessed to him that he had been supplanted in her affections, he secured a divorce. Then she and her perfect lover went away.

At first he assumed the role of magnanimous husband, too generous to discuss his wife's affairs.

But after his mother-in-law had told of her daughter's longing for children and the professor's refusal to have any in his home, he was nettled into self defense.

"I relinquished her because it was the only way out," he declared.

SAW WHAT WAS COMING.

"I can understand my wife's action perfectly. I don't doubt she really loves the man, as whose wife she lived openly for a year. She's a brilliant woman and she loves society and the attendant luxuries that wealth can bring. As a professional man I did not possess the wealth.

"Hart is wealthy. His business will not be hurt by anything he has done personally, and that explains his action.

"My wife had no housekeeping responsibilities. She wanted more servants, however. This man can offer them.

"I saw what was coming. To protect Mrs. Hall-Quest and Mrs. Hart I kept silent. My efforts have been fruitless. I can do no more."

Loses 100 Pounds in 8 Months by Surgical Operations

An Invalid Since Childhood From Infantile Paralysis, Girl Virtually Cured

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 13.—In the dark life of Violet Bachant, the surgeon's knife has proved a veritable fairy's wand, changing misery into gladness.

She is coming home from the Providence Hospital. At the Bachant home, No. 17 Miller street, they are planning a thanksgiving party.

For most of her twenty years the girl has been a helpless invalid, a victim of infantile paralysis.

Now she can stand, and soon she will walk.

For the last six years she has been afflicted with obesity, caused by her enforced inactivity. That is changed. The girl, who weighed 236 pounds eight months ago, weighs 136 pounds today.

The series of unusual operations which removed the rolls of fat has favorably affected her general condition and within a year, in the opinion of physicians, she will be able to walk as well as anyone, and to work, if she desires to.

Dr. Henry A. Lange of No. 254 Broadway, Providence, is the surgical wizard whose skill is responsible for the change.

At the Providence Hospital last February he placed her on the operating table and removed two long sound layers of fat from each side of her abdomen.

Scores of veins were severed and there was a real danger that the girl would bleed to death. But the surgeon tied up the ends as he worked, and she survived.

The operation has been repeated since, until the layers of excessive fat are all taken away. Braces were placed on her and the fat on the upper part of the body began to disappear.

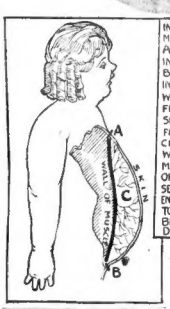
The removal of the fat has a beneficial effect on the girl's muscles, and today she can use her right arm as well as a normal person, for the first time since she was six years old.

Her left arm she can use a little. Her legs are not under perfect control, but she can stand and walk a step or two. Within a year, the surgeons say, she will be able to walk as other people do.

Dr. Lange says the obesity operation is one that should be resorted to only in extreme cases.

In the case of Miss Bachand she was unable to take exercise to stop the steady accumulation of fat, but in the case of men who object to "bay windows" for aesthetic reasons he does not advise the knife. There is too much danger of bleeding to death.

He was the first man in the country to perform such an operation. It has been duplicated since at Battle Creek, Mich.



INCISIONS WERE MADE AT POINTS A AND D, EXTENDING ACROSS THE BODY. THE FAT, INDICATED BY C, WAS REMOVED FROM UNDER THE SKIN, SLICING FROM THE INCISIONS TOWARDS THE MIDDLE. SCORES OF VEINS WERE SEVERED BUT THEIR ENDS WERE TIED TO PREVENT BLEEDING TO DEATH.....

MACCHI WINS RACE FOR ITALIAN AIR CUP

Rome, Oct. 13.—T. Macchi, an Italian aviator, today won first prize, 150,000 lire, in the race for the Italian air cup, flown over a 380 kilometre course. C. Audron of France won the second prize. Hans Udet, a German contestant, was disqualified.

POLICE AND CITIZENS HUNT CHILD'S SLAYER

Detroit, Oct. 13 (I.N.S.)—Spurred to extraordinary efforts because of three similar cases within six months, police and citizens today, for a third day, sought the man who attacked and killed four-year-old Betty Ryser. The girl's body was found in a hay loft near her home.

TURKS HINT AT MOBILIZATION OVER IRAK

London, Oct. 13.—An agency dispatch from Constantinople says the situation concerning the dispute over the Irak frontier is regarded as grave, and that the question of need for general mobilization has been reviewed by the Turkish government.

Constantinople, Oct. 13.—Following receipt of a communication from the British commander in Irak, Mesopotamia, the Turkish council of ministers at Angora held a prolonged session and decided to convoke the National Assembly.

London, Oct. 13 (A.P.)—The British foreign office considers the reply of the Turks to its representations regarding alleged violations of the status quo in Irak as unsatisfactory, but conciliatory in tone. It is expected another note will be sent to Angora.

O. K.'S JURY WHICH CLEARED EX-PREMIER

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 13.—The Newfoundland Supreme Court, in a decision handed down today, confirmed the legal status of a Grand Jury which reported "no bill" in the case of Sir Richard Squires, former Premier, charged with larceny of public money. Counsel for the crown had alleged that the jury was irregularly drawn and summoned.

CRASHES ROCK INTO WINDOW

Snatches Handful of Rings, but Overlooks Other Jewels Worth $2,000

Brockton, Oct. 13.—In one of the boldest robberies in the annals of the local police, a motor thief today drove up to a jewelry store at No. 190 Main street, smashed a window and escaped with $1,000 worth of jewelry.

The robbery occurred shortly before daylight, the thief making good his escape in an automobile, the number of which was not obtained.

According to Sim Hollman, manager of the S. R. Grossmen Company, a machine drew up to the curb in front of the store. With the engine left running, a young man stepped out of the car and advanced to the window.

He produced a large rock, evidently provided for the purpose, and hurled it at the plate glass show window. Before the noise of the crash, which was heard at the police station two blocks away, could bring officers, the thief had reached in the window, seized fourteen rings and a number of watches, and got away.

There was more than $2,000 worth of jewelry in the window at the time which the thief overlooked.

PATIENTS CALM AT BLAZE IN HOSPITAL

Seven patients, including a baby two years old, lay bundled in blankets and robes in their beds at a private hospital in Wellesley Hills, while firemen battled a fire on the first floor of the institution.

The hospital is owned and operated by Dr. Otto L. Schmidt. The doctor was not in that institution when the fire broke out in the injured room on the third floor and spread to the attic, but nurses immediately prepared their patients for moving.

The newly-born baby was the only one in the building and showed no signs of fright when Joe Firemen announced that the fire would be confined to the attic.

The loss is estimated at $1,000.

Loves of a Modern Flapper Told in Best Romance Ever Written by Author of "Chickie"

By ELENORE MEHERIN

IN two weeks, Andrew would return to Fairdale, to the big white house and the white lady in the garden. They went pitifully to this fate, ultimate and dooming as death. Margaret said with breaking voice: "We have stolen this, Andrew—yet it is ours. I know it because of the peace I feel. It is greater than the sorrow."

Fashion Fads

Primly Puritanical are the wide white collars and cuffs worn on the severely simple, dark, woolen frocks for early Fall. While most of these sets are developed of sheered organdy, quite a few heavy linen or pique ones are also seen.

Black as ebony didn't mean very much until we actually saw how densely black ebony beads could look around a snowy white throat. Chocker necklaces of large ebony beads, divided by tiny cut crystals, are now smarter than jet. Long, gipsy earrings or beaded embroidered crepe anad bracelets to match complete these newest sets of costume jewelry.

Scintillating Styles in evening gowns are achieved through the use of metal lame, plain metal fabrics or metal brocades. These lustrous fabrics are rendered even more resplendent through elaborate gold or silver beading.

Pretty and Perky—are the small, gaily colored ribbon bows that are placed just anywhere at all on the newest frocks. Sometimes at the waistline—if one exists—at others, at neck, shoulder or wrist. These little dashes of color are especially effective when used on an otherwise setate black frock.

PRIZES FOR SEPTEMBER

By Martha Lee

LITERALLY hundreds of thousands of menus for a typical New England meal and distinctly New England recipes poured in last month. In awarding the prizes the requirements of the contest have been carefully borne in mind—that the winning recipes and menus must be so typically New England that they would be recognized as such in Kalamazoo or Salt Lake City.

First prize, a four burner Magee Gas Range goes to Mrs. Alice M. Daniels, 3 Maple avenue, Bradford, Mass., membership No. 64, for the following suggestion for a typical New England meal. This menu came beautifully typed with a splendid recipe for each dish mentioned and was bound in a dark brown booklet with the picture of the landing of the Mayflower on the cover.

A NEW ENGLAND SUPPER.

A New England supper, on Saturday night,
In Boston or 'way down in Maine,
Homes humble or rich, in country or town,
You'll find it is nearly the same.
Delicious baked beans and brown bread, piping hot,
Picalli for relish, you'll find—
Dorcas ham most generously sliced—
Cream filled coffee is not far behind.
Of pies there are always two kinds, squash and mince;
There's crispy hot do'nuts and cheese—
Then apples and cider to finish a meal that seems all New England to please.
In the West or the South, this menu seems odd.
But in Washington, I've heard them say—
There's a New England gent, and he's our Frea dent,
That likes Saturday suppers this way.

Second prize, for a New England menu, a Murdock 8-tube Neut-odyne Receiver, goes to Mrs. Mary Root, 98 Appleton street, Atlantic, Mass., membership No. 3065.

Third prize, a beautiful Whiting & Davis Green Gold Mesh Bag to Mrs. F. J. Simpson, 864 Riverway, Boston, Mass. Membership No. 1678, for her menu.

Fourth Prize, a Towle Solid Silver Mah Jongg Bonbon Dish to Mrs. Anna G. Quinn, 67 Bartlett street, Lowell, Mass. Membership No. 709.

BEST TYPICAL RECIPES.

For the best typical New England recipe first prize, a four burner Magee Gas Range goes to Mrs. Mary Campbell, 11 Vernon street, Nashua, N. H. Membership No. 3064, for her New England Apple Pan Dowdy recipe.

Second prize, a Murdock 8-tube Neutrodyne Receiver goes to Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, 62 Rockwell street, Dorchester, Mass. Membership No. 2637, for her New England Clam Chowder.

Third prize, Whiting & Davis Green Gold Mesh Bag to Mrs. Elizabeth B. Sullivan, 2 Elm street, South Hadley Falls, Mass. Membership No. 1835, for her Cape Cod Cranberry Jelly.

Fourth prize, a Towle Solid Silver Mah Jongg Bon Bon Dish, to Mrs. Nellie Skinner, 473 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass. Membership No. 137, for a New England Succotash recipe.

Watch this page for the prize winning recipes and menus which will be published later.

To Readers of "Nora Lee"

IN many Boston homes anxious mothers are lying awake during the still hours of the night asking themselves many questions about their daughters.

It is for these mothers that Elenore Meherin wrote "Nora Lee," just started in the Boston American. Miss Meherin contends that parents should know more about conditions as they really exist today in order to intelligently deal with their children.

This generaton looks with terror upon the devitries of the young who are stepping so speedily on the high-road to freedom.

Can anything be done about it or should the world sit back and let our young folks have their "fling?"

Elenore Meherin answers this question in Nora Lee. And in doing so she offers advice to parents that will help them immeasurably in dealing with their pleasure-seeking boys and girls.

PARIS SENDS NEW IDEAS

A model chez PAUL POIRET is sketched at the left. It is an afternoon gown of heavy and lustrous black satin with a knee length tunic of straight silhouette buttoning at the right hip, and an underskirt of equally straight line despite the insertion of a group of pleats at the right side. The sleeves are long and fit in a wide rounding line and are slashed for several inches along the outer edge. A large and extremely decorative motif of Chinese design is embroidered on the front of the tunic in brilliant tones of yellow, lacquer-red, jade and gold. Perhaps one of the most interesting features of the frock is its one-sided neckline, a new note and one much used by POIRET.

On the right is shown an evening frock from CHARLOTTE'S new collection, a model that Mme. Charlotte is herself wearing. The silhouette is tube like and perfectly straight from shoulder to hem. An unusually high neckline at the front brings the top of the bodice to the very base of the throat. At the back, however, the line is shaped in a low curve. Black panne velvet makes the entire frock, but so heavily is the lower half beaded with crystal tubes placed horizontally that the effect is of a silvery white skirt and a black velvet bodice. Fringes of jet beads tapering to a deep point at the front form a tinkling apron, while a similar apron at the back is made of crystal fringes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON BACON

WHEN I finish today's talk I hope the word "Bacon" will not bring to your mind just the supplementary words "and eggs" but instead, the innumerable other savory dishes which fit into any luncheon menu and which, when reinforced with bacon, form a substantial and appetizing main dish.

Here are a few suggestions for new bacon combinations and then I'll give you some of the recipes I've been asked for.

Try for a change creamed potatoes with bacon; spaghetti with tomato sauce and bacon; potato or hominy omelet with glace and bacon; escalloped potatoes or sweet potatoes with bacon; fish cakes or potato patties with bacon; browned parsnips, fried egg plant or tomatoes or creamed salsify with bacon.

In cooking bacon be careful not to burn the fat. This can be turned into a jar or can and used to the last drop in shortening molasses or spice cakes, chocolate or molasses spice cookies, corn or any other whole grain bread. It is suitable for seasoning vegetables, for savory sauces and for frying vegetables, fish and meats.

BAKED FISH WITH BACON

Purchase two pounds of fish fillet—haddock, sole, flounders or whitefish. Oil a baking pan with bacon fat, lay in the fillets, dust with salt, pepper and minced parsley, grated cheese or a little onion. Lay strips of bacon cut in two across the fillets, pour a cupful of canned tomatoes into the pan and bake until the bacon is crisp and the fillet tender, about 25 minutes.

POPPED POTATOES WITH BACON

Scrub a large Irish potato for each person, rub over with bacon fat and bake in a hot oven until mealy, about 45 minutes. Slit the potatoes Maltese cross fashion and pop them open by pressing the bottom. Stir into each a generous tablespoonful of diced cooked bacon with a little fat.

CLUB SALAD

The salad should be arranged individually as follows: Place two or three lettuce leaves on a salad plate, on this lay a slice of crisp buttered toast, then a slice of chicken or lean roast pork, one or two of tomatoes, some mayonnaise and two strips of cooked bacon. Top with parsley.

BACON RAREBIT

Prepare a Welch rarebit by your usual recipe. Lay slices of buttered toast in a baking dish, put spoonfuls of rarebit over this and lay a slice of bacon on each piece of toast. Bake in a quick oven until the bacon is crisp. This is an excellent way to use up left-over rarebit.

BACON MUFFINS

Prepare a plain one-egg muffin batter; omit the shortening, adding instead, a half cupful of diced cooked bacon and two tablespoonfuls of melted bacon fat. Serve in a substantial course at breakfast.

BACON AND EGG PAN CAKES.

Allow a slice of bacon diced, to each person; cook until crisp in an individual omelet pan. Then stir in a well beaten egg, season with salt, pepper and cook without stirring until the mixture is firm. Roll up for serving. It may be necessary to pour off half of the bacon fat from the pan.

SMOTHERED EGGS WITH BACON

Boil large sweet potatoes; cool and then remove the skins. Scoop out the center, and fry the hollowed-out potatoes a golden brown in smoking hot fat. Break a fresh egg in the well in the potato and place in a casserole or baking dish. Cover each egg with 2 tablespoons of thick cream sauce and little bread crumbs. Bake in hot oven for 15 minutes. Garnish each potato with 3 nicely browned slices of bacon, a few sprigs of parsley.

NORA LEE

A Story of Flaming Youth

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable, but she endured him for three years. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. She never saw him again. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. So they parted, but when she moved to another town Andrew suddenly appeared.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

"From whom have we stolen? I have paid all the debts I owe! These hours and all I have are yours, Margaret, whether you take them or not."

She touched his hand gently and closed her eyes.

Andrew took a shack near the stream. He brought them mountain trout. Often they got up early in the morning, when the air had that uplifting, joyous touch. They walked up the trails. They packed lunch and went into the forest.

Nora Lee was no longer afraid that these two would run away and leave her behind. She tucked her hand in Andrew's, making him stop whenever a bird sang. Then he would rock his head on the side and imitate the sweet, wild music. His eyes turned merrily. Then she knew he wasn't old at all.

She said, "You're so funny, Andrew, when you look like that. I wish we'd stay forever and ever. Why don't we?"

No one answered. A word like that came flinging against their hearts with the stark, immutable tragedy of parting—the lifelong fare well. They had not courage to meet each other's eyes.

Building Memories

They were so bound with love and anguish now. Sometimes Andrew pressed her hand, or passing under trees, their cheeks would touch. It was as though a song burst upon them. She would find tears in his eyes. The hours were filled with these heart-piercing harmonies.

Until it grew inconceivable that they must tear themselves apart. She looked at his eager, winning face, at the touch of grey in his brown hair. She laughed at his lean, supple strength as he swung Nora Lee from a tree.

And it was suddenly borne upon her—the shame and cruelty of Andrew's fate—far more blasting than her own. She had the beloved child. But more than this, she was going into the future alone. All her life she might keep as a holy, secret flame the memory of this great sweetness. Nothing would come between it and her.

Andrew would not be alone. He would go on enduring, resenting sorrowing. All the gentle strength, all the fine, hidden fire of his spirit would be dimmed. In a few years the Andrew that she loved would be killed—body and soul.

She shut her mind grimly against this remorseless picture. Their last day came—their last hour. The polished madrones were dark and silvered in the starlight. Now and then a leaf fluttered—a bright, crystalline sound in the dim, monastic quiet.

There are no words to soften moments such as these. Once Andrew wound his arms about her, pressing his lips against her throat.

She said faintly: "Oh Andrew—what a great wrong I've done you——"

"In loving me?"

"Yes—in loving you——"

A smile went over his whole face. His eyes dwelt and dwelt on hers. "It can not be, Margaret, that we are never to meet again. It is past accepting. Grant this—let me come twice each year. I've thought of this. It can be done. Two weeks from each year, let me live——"

She turned from him forlornly. "Twice each year? Then it would be three times—then four. You know how things like that would end. No—we have had an hour—let us keep faith with that——"

He said stilly: "This is harder than death. I would find it easier to die; easier to know, Margaret, that you were gone, than living to let you go——"

The Parting

They went on, drawing their souls the closer with this living pain.

But in the morning Andrew carried their bags to the train. Nora Lee pulled his head down and whispered, "Why don't you come, Andrew. Please—will you? Maybe some day?"

He laughed, but he said quietly, forcing Margaret's eyes to his, "Yes—some day I'll come! Believe this, Margaret."

"No, Andrew—do not hope——"

He caught her hand swiftly in both of his. The beseeching prayer on his young, harried face smote her like a sob. But suddenly he smiled: "My darling—thanks!"

She turned quickly because the smile was too much to bear.

Then he was standing with his hat in his hand—waving. Nora Lee said: "Look—his face is getting smaller—oh, he's moved against the tree——"

Margaret did not turn. Her heart was sick with a terror as of death.

* * *

The ashen heat of Summer lay on the white floor of the valley. All about them in towering, monotonous circles, the gray, naked mountains ranged.

Like a dot in the vast emptiness stood this small abandoned cabin. Barebrush, dusty and sullen in the sun, crowded about the fence and half way up the walls. No flower—no color—no sound.

Half a mile distant, dropped like a doomed exile in a forgotten waste, was the two-roomed school house.

Into Loneliness

Margaret pushed open the gate to the cabin. Forebodings crept up and made a deadly weight about her thought.

Nora Lee turned with frightened, angry tears: "Oh, Mamma! Didn't he make a mistake? This can't be the place. We're not to live here? Oh, we can't live here all alone!"

It was their new home—a remote and deadened place—nothing to do, no one to see. They and the mountains.

Margaret went about putting golden gauze on the windows, putting amber shades on her lamps

a garden. Nothing would grow. Then Andrew sent them plants—purple wisteria for the porch.

Nora Lee was excited about that. It would be just like their porch at Fairdale. Every morning she carried a bucket of water to the little vine. She loved it and gave it a secret name. She used to whisper: "Jane—grow up lovely won't you? You please will—all over the porch."

She had an idea that flowers had feelings and they understood words.

The plant grew. One night the frost touched it. It shrivelled. The leaves fell away. In a week not one was left. The stalk was dead.

Chill Loneliness

When Nora Lee saw this she stood perfectly still. Then her hands began to shake. Wild sobs rushed to her lips.

Margaret came gently. "Are you sure it is dead?"

Nora Lee pulled it with a broken-hearted violence from the ground. "Look at it! Look at it. This is a damn place. It's a damn, damn place!" She cried over the plant as though its perishing were a tragedy.

She would not work in the forlorn little garden any more.

Her loneliness was adding for greater than Margaret realized. There were no children in the school—only ten overgrown pupils—seven boys and three girls. They were much older than Nora Lee, yet much slower. They straggled in all morning. Sometimes they didn't come at all. Then Nora Lee had to say all the lessons. She thought burningly: "Oh mamma doesn't care about me—oh, I wish I could die——"

Her imagination peopled the vast, gray solitude with terrors. She [illegible] made her [illegible] mountains [illegible] until they seemed coming together. They were alive. They were jamming Margaret and herself up here forever alone.

An [illegible] aunt trees on the hill side—oh, they aren't trees at all. They're black giants—terrible black giants moving with a deadly slowness—closer—closer. Soon they will overtake them. They will twist their branches down and strangle them.

3 MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

MONGOLIA is a bleak country situated between China and Russia, and noted for its violent windstorms, infrequent rains, and severely cold Winters. The region, for miles around, is one vast desolate stretch of barren land and rolling plains.

The condition of the country makes it unsuitable for agriculture, and because of the rigorous climate, the Mongolians have become pastoral people. They tend herds of sheep and goats, and wander from one section of the country to the other in search of grazing land for their flocks.

Because they are constantly on the move, they are called "nomads of the desert." For this reason, the Mongols have devised, and built for their own special use, portable dwellings, known as "yurts."

These dwellings are huge circular affairs, resembling large beehives, but so constructed that they can be erected or taken down in thirty minutes, and built to withstand the severe windstorms of the Gold desert, one of the bleakest of deserts in all the world.

The Mongolians are among the dirtiest people on earth. Due to the scarcity of water and the frequency of the sandstorms in that country, they do not feel obliged to bathe more than once a year. Yet, in striking contrast to this utter lack of personal hygiene, is the cleanliness and neatness of their temples. These temples are kept scrupulously clean, and when a Mongol is not busy tending sheep he is occupied with beautifying the interior of these houses of worship.

As everyone knows, the milk of camels and goats is highly nutritious and the inhabitants of Mongolia practically live on it, as it enables them to endure thirst and starvation. The unique method of milking the goats, is both interesting and amusing. The owner places several goats in a row, facing each other, not to keep them quiet and enable him to do his milking at leisure, he ties their heads firmly together.

There is a similarity in customs between the early settlers of our own Western plains, and the Mongolians. A characteristic trait, that stands out above all others, is their hospitality and friendliness.

No stranger need want for money, food or shelter when traveling through a Mongol's village. In fact, a Mongol will go out of his way, to make a visitor feel comfortable.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

IT is your duty to yourself and to your family to put as much beauty as possible within your home.

Dr. Mahoney.

Beauty in your surroundings consists primarily of color.

Color is the effect produced by any object through your sense of vision upon your brain.

This fact may be pleasurable or otherwise, according to your appreciation of the different colors. No two persons have the same standard in this respect.

Some people have a high sense of some colors and none of other colors. Some have a high appreciation of harmony in colors, others are moved by more or less violent contrasts.

In whichever of these categories you may belong, give a little careful thought to the colors that give you pleasure, then put them into your home so that even when you look at them subconsciously you may be moved to pleasure and not to revolt against your surroundings.

Artists of all time have recognized the effect of the different colors upon the emotions, and have always utilized colors upon their canvases in a more or less symbolic sense.

M. Michel Jacobs, in his phenomenal new work on the "Art of Color," recognizes the psychology of color as one of the fundamental principles of art.

White is the symbol of purity and sacrifice to the Western World and of mourning to the Orientals.

Red conveys the idea of glory, heat, laughter, harvest, plenty, Autumn, happiness and warmth.

The yellows are employed to signify decay, desert, indecency, inconsistency and sickness.

Certain of the browns are used to express warmth, plenty and contentment.

These interpretations of color have evolved through long ages and consequently have an important foundation in effect.

Is it not of the highest importance that you should learn the effect of colors upon your own emotions.

It is not conducive to your happiness and therefore to your efficiency and welfare that you should surround yourself only by such colors as will produce within you the most agreeable of emotions?

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Is there any way of getting rid of halitosis?

D. Z., Lowell.

I would recommend that you have your teeth thoroughly gone over. If this does not help, consult your physician.

Should a person take a bath every night and also in the morning?

E. F. E., Boston.

Excessive bathing is liable to make the skin delicate and often leads to chronic colds, particularly when one is in a hurry and does not wipe himself thoroughly in the morning.

LA FOLLETTE IS STRONGER ON 17TH DAY POLL

for President at his very weakest and La Follette drawing up on Coolidge.

This may not be true of your community, or your block, or in your town, but these votes came from Lawrence, from Marlboro, from Salem and from Haverhill. The only straw ballot that is at all helpful in the way of showing in which way the election is turning is that which aims at results truly representative of the voting district as a whole.

Figures for the day by communities will be found in the accompanying table. The vote for the seventeenth day was.

|---|---|
| Total | 1,211 |
| Coolidge | 519 |
| La Follette | 415 |
| Davis | 577 |
| Coolidge over La Follette | 104 |
| La Follette over Davis | 138 |
| Both leading Coolidge by | 173 |
| Shift from Cox to Coolidge | 35 |
| Harding to Davis | 49 |
| Democrats for La Follette | 143 |
| Republicans for La Follette | 154 |
| Others for La Follette | 118 |

WORKERS FOR LA FOLLETTE.

When, in the opening paragraph, the expression was used, "shoes and cottons," reference was intended, of course, to the workers, the wage-earners, the "hands," as the old-time captain of industry used to call them.

From this source came most of the La Follette votes reported in the four cities which have been mentioned.

The treasurer's office, the counting room, and the merchant on the street, continue to register their belief in President Coolidge and their intention to vote for him.

The principal job before the Republican managers in Massachusetts, or at least it would so appear three weeks before election day, will be to get out the vote.

A young woman reporter, who started out to learn how the candy vote is going in this election, gave up in despair after trying three Fulton street candy factories.

Most of the workers in the great candy establishments of Boston, she says, appear to be girls from sixteen to twenty-one years of age.

"These young women were willing enough to talk," the reporter says, "but nine out of ten of them wanted to vote for Rudolph Valentino and who would mark a ballot for me. Every one of these are for John W. Davis."

That Mr. Davis will need the candy vote, and every other available vote was apparent to the reporter whose beat for the day was Essex street in Lawrence, one of the finest business boulevards and shopping thoroughfares in New England.

SHIFT IN LAWRENCE.

Lawrence is, or has been, a Democratic stronghold. "Democrat from way back," but observe this Lawrence straw ballot:

Davis, 25; Coolidge, 47; La Follette, 35.

Or, come a few miles down the Merrimac River to Haverhill, and consider the present political temper or some of the men and women who make shoes:

Davis, 21; Coolidge, 42; La Follette, 104.

La Follette Ignored in Laconia, N. H.

Laconia, N. H., Oct. 13.—New Hampshire's lake city not only declines to follow Manchester into the La Follette column but, on the whole, evinces small interest in the Wisconsin man. This is Coolidge territory.

Interviewing pedestrians, and going into business houses on Pleasant street and elsewhere in Laconia, a Boston American representative polled 121 citizens, with the following result:

|---|---|
| Coolidge | 79 |
| Davis | 33 |
| La Follette | 10 |

Two of the La Follette votes came from men who voted for Cox four years ago, two from men who supported Harding in that election, and six from first voters or other persons who did not vote in 1920.

Local political wiseacres declare that outside of this paper city of Berlin, far up near the Canada line,

Democrats Hurt Most in Bangor District

Bangor, Me., Oct. 13.—Beginning with the understanding that Maine already is as good as in the Coolidge column, which will not be disputed, the only possible value of the straw ballot in these parts is to indicate how much of a vote Senator La Follette will get and where that vote is coming from.

The figures which follow, and which are up to date, have been collected in this part of Maine by the Bangor Commercial, in co-operation with the Boston American:

|---|---|
| Coolidge | 390 |
| La Follette | 86 |
| Davis | 83 |
| Democrats for La Follette | 41 |
| Republicans for La Follette | 26 |
| Others for La Follette | 18 |

SUPERINTENDENT CROWLEY AND SOME OF THE MARCHERS

PYTHIANS GIVE COLORFUL SPECTACLE

Glittering uniforms of men and spectacular costumes of women featured the parade of nearly 15,000 Knights of Pythias and affiliated organizations, which started at one o'clock today.

At least 60 floats and more than 20 bands, including the famous Shriners' band, were in line, together with delegations from more than 300 local organizations.

Several prizes were offered, among them being three for the most spectacular showing made by women's organizations, and there was spirited competition.

MANY WOMEN IN LINE.

Although the bulk of the women were Pythian Sisters, there were a number of women guests with various units.

The parade started from Beacon and Arlington streets, and passing between rows of cheering spectators, proceeded to Park street, to Tremont, to Boylston, to Dartmouth, to Huntington avenue, and thence to Mechanics Building.

The line was reviewed at the State House by State officials and by the Pythian officials at Copley square. The program at Mechanics Building started at 2 p. m. and was scheduled to last until 11.

WEAR $1,500 ROBES.

Past Grand Chancellor Harry R. Lawrence was chief marshal of the parade, which was a testimonial to the election of John Ballantyne as supreme chancellor.

A feature of the spectacle was offered by one of the smaller Greater Boston lodges which put its degree team in the street, wearing for the first time their official robes which cost $1,500.

Another lodge turned out three fully equipped rank staffs. The Nomads of Avrudaka had a drill team of women in line.

MEXICO AGREES TO GIVE UP ACCUSED U. S. BANKER

Mexico City, Oct. 13.—The Mexican authorities have agreed to the extradition not George W. Mitchell, recently arrested near Tampico as a fugitive from Winner, S. D. As president and cashier of the First extradition of George W. Mitchell, is charged with defalcations amounting to $350,000.

HUB'S FINEST ARE CHEERED ON MARCH

Before the admiring eyes of 50,000 persons, 1,500 Boston policemen, members of one of the finest and most efficient departments in the world paraded through Boston streets today in full dress uniform and to the stirring music of several bands.

Heads held high, eyes flashing and exuding the matchless health and vitality of youth the hosts of law and order stepped in perfect rhythm along Back Bay and downtown streets through crowds of cheering citizens.

Marching ahead was Michael H. Crowley, superintendent and police director. He was recipient of a flattering personal reception as he strode along in uniform of shining gold and blue.

The hero officers who are proud wearers of the Walter Scott medal for bravery in the line of duty and others of the force who were planned to their breast the various decorations for valorous deeds in the World War were given a great ovation by the thousands of spectators.

The parade started in Commonwealth avenue and Dartmouth street, traversing the following thoroughfares: Arlington st. to Boylston, to Tremont to Temple place to Washington street to School street where Mayor Curley and city officials reviewed it; to Beacon street and the State House and the Common.

At the State House reviewing stand Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller, Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, Executive Councillor Charles L. Burrell and Commissioner Wilson's secretary, reviewed the marchers.

On the Common when the paraders arrived, 10,000 persons assembled to witness the dress review and evolutions.

In these maneuvers the bluecoated minions did themselves proud. A large percentage of the new Boston force is made up of former soldiers sailors and marines. Hence the review and dress parade proved the great feature of the day.

The roster of the parade was as follows:

Escort of mounted police
Superintendent Michael H. Crowley
Captain Lewis E. Letts
Lieutenants Charles F. Rowley, Edward H. Mullen, Edward J. Donaghan and Archibald Campbell
Sergeant Major Francis X. J. Kavanaugh
Orderly Edward J. Siebel
Yankee Division Band
(100th Cavalry
Boston Traffic Band
(Composed of police of the traffic squad)
Police regiments by divisions
Captains, Lieutenants, Sergeants and patrolmen
Police Machine Gun Companies
Patrol detachments 13 and 14
Mounted Police.

CHICKIE APRON RUSH BRINGS BIG DEMAND

Boston and New England are going through a Chickie Apron tea—and this is a word of warning to the women of the household who just know they want a Chickie Tea Apron, but who haven't quite gotten 'round to getting one.

Even if these beautiful and serviceable aprons are made of live rubber, they can't be stretched out to cover more people than there are aprons.

Therefore, it behooves those who would be sure of the pretty and efficient garment, to clip two coupons from Boston Americans of two consecutive dates and match them with forty-nine cents. You can get one by mail (add four cents for postage), or you can go to any dealer listed below:

The League of Nations Now a Plot Against Us

THE League of Nations, in its session just closed, adopted a protocol which proposes to take over the future control of all nations, not only their external but their internal affairs. It provides that the decisions of the World Court shall be enforced, if need be, by the combined forces of all nations belonging to the League.

According to this protocol no nation can exempt itself from the World Court's jurisdiction by failing to join, for this protocol with astounding arrogance, proceeds to invest this Court with jurisdiction over every nation on earth, whether it be member or non-member. The League of Nations is authorized by this new and extraordinary "protocol" to summon to the bar any nation against which any other nation has lodged any complaint whatsoever. Domestic questions like immigration are not excluded.

Not one inch of ground on earth remains immune from the all-embracing jurisdiction which the League thus arrogates to itself at the dictation of Japan and with the consent of the British, French and Italian diplomatists.

It is the most arrogant assumption of authority ever uttered by any human power.

This new international intrigue, intended as a threat to, and coercion of, the United States, comes not from any War Lord, but from the Shepherds of Peace, reclining in the Swiss love bower of the League of Nations!

It comes from those who from 1914 until 1917 cried to America: "Help us, lest we perish—and with us, Civilization!"

It comes from those we saved when the steel avalanche of the Central Powers had pressed them back against the Channel, from those whose wounds we healed, whose devastated ruins we restored, whose poverty we relieved—and whose unpaid bills are now the souvenirs of the most colossal Fool's Errand in human history.

Forty-seven nations, led by Britain, France and Italy, sitting beneath their canopy of olive branches, fluttering with the wings of innumerable doves—forty-seven of them, perched in exalted majesty in Geneva, unanimously adopt a protocol which declares that henceforth all nations, in their most important aspects, shall be merely provinces of this towering super-government!

Just what does this protocol mean to the United States?

It means that if Japan presents our Japanese Exclusion Act to the World Court, the World Court shall forthwith issue a summons for the United States to appear at such an hour on such a day at such and such a place in Europe!

If we answer that we never joined this court and are not subject to it, we shall be told that the World Court has assumed complete jurisdiction over us, or rather, that the League of Nations has assumed such jurisdiction for it.

If we then protest that Japanese immigration is, under international law, a purely domestic question and that we deny the Court's or the League's jurisdiction, we shall be told that unless we obey the League's mandate we shall be denounced as an aggressor. All the nations in the League will unite against us.

And should it be decided that some fine was due from us for our insubordination to this mighty Court it could straightway enter a decree cancelling all debts now due us from abroad!

This is the naked logic of this protocol in this one vital issue between this country and Japan.

The question naturally occurs to the average American—could it have been any worse had Germany won the war?

Suppose the United States had not intervened in the World War and thus saved England, France and Italy? Suppose that we had stayed at home and saved our soldiers and our treasure?

The least that can be said is that this protocol is but a threat to force us into the League of Nations.

If time should prove it only attempted coercion or blackmail, then America will dismiss it with that scorn to which all blackmailers are entitled.

But if the intriguing diplomatists of Europe and Asia really mean it—and they say they do—then America will say to them, as in her infancy she said to smaller pirates: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute!"

This No World for Pessimists

It Is an Encouraging, Hopeful World—Despite the Misery and Injustice That Still Disgrace It

There are men who are genuinely discouraged, genuinely pessimistic, who feel that the world has gone wrong or that the development of our social system is too slow.

The fact is that the kind of civilization which we have now is about the best that WE are capable of. We are building upward slowly, through the dark waters. We shall see some improvement in the future, as we have seen some in the past. The great scheme subject to which we labor is a merciful scheme, and we are allowed to see a little progress at least—although some of us imagine that we are going backward, AND NONE OF US IS CAPABLE OF REALIZING THE GREAT ULTIMATE RESULT.

To any man who feels pessimistic about America and about civilization in general we offer these statements of fact:

A great curse of humanity has been drunkenness. DRUNKENNESS HAS SYSTEMATICALLY DIMINISHED EVERYWHERE OUTSIDE OF THE SAVAGE RACES.

The greatest of all curses in this world has been ignorance. IGNORANCE HAS DIMINISHED IN THE PAST HUNDRED YEARS AMONG THE INHABITANTS OF THE WORLD TO AN EXTENT UNKNOWN IN A HUNDRED CENTURIES PAST.

The printing press has done for the brain, for education, the greatest conceivable work, a work far superior to that done for transportation by the steam engine. No man has a right to talk pessimistically when he realizes that for the first time in the world's history the man WHO CANNOT READ IS AN EXCEPTION.

Another dreadful feature of life on earth has been poverty. Poverty we still have with us, and only too much of it. BUT POVERTY IS DIMINISHING. Men's wages within the lives of those now struggling have been doubled and quadrupled.

Superstition and the brutality and cruelty bred by it have been curses of humanity. SUPERSTITION STILL EXISTS, BUT IT HAS NO GOVERNING POWER AMONG US TODAY. There are no bonfires where human beings are burned alive, "TO THE GLORY OF GOD."

No man who has looked into the past, who has seen the rack, the burning fire, the wretched creature tortured with all the ingenuity that superstition could devise, has any right to talk pessimistically about the present.

As for government, it is true that we have not by any means obtained perfection. But we have at least escaped from hereditary brutality in this country and nearly everywhere else. We no longer have vile kings breeding degenerate monsters called princes, inheriting the power to cut throats by the hundreds of thousands and set one country fighting another.

We DO fight still—as the dogs fight, for we are not yet civilized—but we at least fight more or less of our own accord.

We have at this moment in the United States a rule by money. Money, which means power, is organized for its own protection, and it DOES oppress the people.

But how superior it is to the superstitious government of the heathen world in the dark times! How superior to the feudal government by disorganized armed bands! How superior to the absolute monarchy that succeeded feudalism!

It is true that the people ARE FOOLED. But while the people have their votes, and while it is within their power to control themselves and better their conditions as soon as they MAKE UP THEIR MINDS TO, no man has a right to talk pessimistically.

There was a day when the prisons of the country cost a hundred times as much as all the schools and libraries put together. Think how that has changed! How splendid a thing it is when you go into an American town to see the biggest, the finest, the costliest building, A FREE AMERICAN PUBLIC SCHOOL! This country has every reason to congratulate itself upon what it has achieved, AND UPON THE POSSIBILITIES BEFORE IT ESPECIALLY.

All that is required from the citizens is INDEPENDENT THOUGHT AND INDEPENDENT ACTION. In the past they have been too much taken up with their individual supplies of money. They have taken government too much for granted.

They can better that, AND THEY WILL. There is no ground for pessimism.

Vet Needs Overcoat

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a young married man with a wife and two children and have been out of work for quite a while. I am a world war veteran and was overseas for eighteen months. ## ABILITY NEEDED IN MOTHERCRAFT

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PEOPLE have to learn other crafts, why is it supposed that anyone is able to understand mothercraft?

This requires quite as much ability and cleverness as anything else. There are very few mothers and certainly the demand for motherhood is greater than anything else. A man cannot become an artist, no matter what his ability, unless he first learns how to wield the brush. Nor does any boy with mechanical ability become an engineer without training.

Motherhood is a profession and, as Muriel Wrinch says, "It is necessary that women naturally endowed with the capacity of motherhood should look upon it as a craft."

A mother should be to some extent educated intellectually. Of course she needs a capacity for devotion and self-sacrifice, but the emphasis on intellectual work has not been stressed. She will have charge of growing minds and these must be fed in the right way. The mother is not only the first, she is the most important teacher.

She needs a physical education. Children require longer and shorter hours of sleep, different food, and a varying amount of exercise. The mother should understand the principles of physiology.

She must understand the principles of psychology and know the characteristics of the normal child and understand the reason for its ceaseless activity.

She must understand why the child learns numbers more quickly while playing at grocery store than while solemnly counting out beans or counters. She must know enough about the mythology of many countries to understand about princesses and fairies, giants and dwarfs. She ought to know enough of natural history to teach the child to use his eyes and see the wonders about him.

She should understand the training of character and be able to teach the lessons of life to the child so that he will know how to live.

The study of ethics, philosophy and practical experience will be of use to her.

The woman who takes her motherhood seciously ought to take her training seriously and if she did so we would have happier children. It is her duty to train their instincts and to enforce them by intelligence.

ONCE-OVERS

LET YOUR WIFE TAKE PART IN THE SOCIAL LIFE SHE ENJOYS.

You want your wife to associate with certain other women of your city and sometimes you complain she does not do so. Yet you make still stronger complaint when she asks for those things which are necessary if she is to take her place in the society with which you wish her to mingle.

If you want your wife to take part in social affairs you must provide the gowns that she will need, as well as the accessories and the money which is required to entertain.

She cannot and she will not be a "social sponge" absorbing, not giving.

You should not blame her for this attitude.

If you will not provide what she needs to enable her to do her part with the others, you have no right to complain if she does not make an effort to do so.

Have you ever thought, old man, that one of the principal reasons why your wife does not take a more active part in social affairs is because she knows that you cannot afford to give her what is required.

She is denying herself this pleasure which she might enjoy because she wants to help you financially.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

IN this lazy, hazy weather when the air is crisp and sweet, when the scarlet leaves and golden pile their glories at my feet, something seems to whisper: "Follow down the dusky forest ways, take the trail the gypsies travel in the glowing Autumn days! Leave the hurry and the tumult, from the cities wander far, where beyond the smoky twilight you can glimpse the evening star!" Few indeed my idle moments and the hours are ever fleet, filled with duties and with pleasure, grave or merry, sad or sweet. Little time for idle dreaming, little heed for starry light, for the moon, an urgent crescent in the sapphire deeps of night. Yet, I wonder, am I wiser than to go the ways of men than to wander free and happy as the forest denizen? In the fragrant, leafy places I could dream the whole day long, kin to little, feathered creatures with their floods of carefree song. Hoarding cold and grasping glory—is this greater than the gain I might garner from the music of the falling Autumn rain? In this golden, glowing weather, fragrant still with Summer's sweets, something seems to whisper: "Follow where the heart of Nature beats."
